250 CONVICTS RIOT IN UTAH STATE PRISON

WRECK DINING ROOM AND START FIRE IN BUILDING

Salt Lake City, Nov. 26 (AP)—One convict was wounded, a dining room wrecked and a cellhouse threatened by fire in a riot at the Utah state prison tonight.

The blaze was brought under control by fire companies and the 250 rioting prisoners were subdued by prison guards before a squad of 25 city policemen and deputy sheriffs armed with tear gas and machine guns arrived at the prison.

Jesus Areso, a prisoner, was shot in one leg when he attempted to rush through a rear door of the prison while guards were entering from outside the walls. His condition was not serious.

Warden R. E. Davis reported the riot broke out while the men were marching into the dining room for their evening meal.

After approximately 250 of them had reached the room, they began smashing furniture and dishes. They piled benches and chairs on the large stove in the place to start the fire.

Blaze Under Control

Three inside guards were unable to halt the rioting, but succeeded in closing the doors and confining the uprising to the dining room. No effort was made to harm them, the prisoners being content to wreck the room.

When the fire companies arrived flames were leaping from the roof of the cell house. The blaze was soon under control and all available guards circled the building where the prisoners were screaming and smashing furniture. Several shots were fired through the windows of the structure, but none took effect.

By the time officers from this city had reached the prison, which is located in Sugarhouse, a suburb, comparative quiet was restored.

Warden Davis said he was unable to explain the outbreak, but reported one of the men had written "you're getting short 'Silver' " on a blackboard found in the room. Davis is known as "Silver Top" among the prisoners because of his white hair and he indicated the "short" probably referred to the prison rations.

He said, however, the men were well fed. The evening meal consisted of tomato sauce, bread, onions, baked beans, cup cakes and tea.

Davis said none of the rioting men was armed. He estimated the fire damage at approximately $200, but said the damaged furniture and wrecked room would total several times that figure.

Vet Gets 60 Days On Assault Charge

Detroit, Nov. 26 (AP)—Boleslaus Wozniak, 37, a war veteran, was sentenced to 60 days in the Detroit house of correction Saturday on a charge of assaulting a welfare worker. Mrs. Martha Goldberg, a family case worker, testified Wozniak had received $1,500 in welfare aid in the last two years but was denied further assistance when he refused to draw on his $1,200 adjusted compensation certificate. He thereupon knocked her to the floor and kicked her, she said.

Farmer Killed As Train Hits Auto

St. Johns, Mich., Nov. 26. (AP)—Frank Pierce, 40 years old, Clinton county farmer, living near Fowler, 10 miles west of St. Johns, was killed this afternoon, when he drove his car and trailer onto the Grand Trunk tracks at the Fowler crossing, and was hit by a Grand Trunk fast passenger train. It is believed that Pierce failed to note the approach of the train. His body was thrown a quarter of a mile from the crossing. Engineer Goptsbeck of Durand was unable to continue with the train and was replaced by S. M. Scott of Detroit.

Pierce leaves a widow and several children. Although a jury was impaneled, the Clinton county coroner stated there probably would be no inquest held.

LEGION LEADER DEFENDS VETS

Johnson Says Funds for Soldiers Should Not Be Decreased

Richmond, Va., Nov. 26 (AP)—Louis A. Johnson, national commander of the American Legion, in an address here tonight in which he urged continuation of veterans' appropriations spoke of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd as "unwittingly and unintentionally" the "stalking horse for the one person out of 3,000 of our population who is against the veterans of America."

Speaking at a public meeting in the auditorium of the John Marshall hotel Commander Johnson described the legion as "a spontaneous thing, born with the sound of battle ringing in our ears," and said "the first love, the first obligation and duty of the American Legion is rehabilitation.

He spoke of "an organized crowd of clever opponents who are not disinterested in relieving themselves of the responsibility of taxation," and charged that they "misrepresent facts deliberately, they are inciting class against class."

Facts and figures were cited to show that federal tax burdens are not so heavy and have not increased in the same manner as state and local taxes. It was further argued by Commander Johnson that the chief burden of federal taxes, from which veterans' appropriations come, is borne by a comparatively small group in the larger income classes.

"For each dollar paid by the larger group of federal income taxpayers," he said, "$330 is paid by the smaller group with the bigger incomes and that is where the fight against the veterans comes, from the one per cent of the three and one third per cent of our population, or approximately one person out of 3,000 of our entire population."

Quoting then from an address by Admiral Byrd, Commander Johnson said he would agree with Byrd's statement that taxes have got to be reduced but he added that "while Admiral Byrd is out paying his respects and his compliments to the American Legion there appears in print from the pen of Archibald Roosevelt, the secretary of the organization, the statement that, in reducing taxes, there remains, therefore, only the veteran."

Reading from the brief of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States opposing veterans' appropriations the statement that redistricting hospitalization to service-connected disability would remove the necessity for further hospitalization construction and permit abandonment of the facilities already completed, Commander Johnson asked: "If we take away the federal support of the men who fought for the federal government, what becomes of these dependents?"

He said they would be thrown back on the states and further increases in state and local taxes would be necessary, shifting the burden from high-salaried federal income tax payers to the average American taxpayer who "will have to carry the burden, because I know you will take care of these men if they are thrown back on your doorstep."

Honor Student Will Face Murder Trial

Muskegon, Nov. 26 (AP)—James Regis Martin, 16 year old honor student from Iowa City, Iowa, probably will go on trial in circuit court here during the second week of December on a charge of slaying Hans Nielsen, oil station operator, in an attempted hold-up. The defense probably will plead insanity.

WINNERS PLAN TO TAKE JOBS ON JANUARY 2

CERTIFICATION NOW AWAITS RECOUNT IN WAYNE

BY DAVID J. WILKIE

Detroit, Nov. 26. (AP)—While the scrambled condition of a large section of the Wayne county vote and the recounts asked in the contest for secretary of state are halting formal certification of the election of the successful candidates in the November 8 election, the Democratic officers-elect generally are going ahead with preliminary plans for taking over the burden of most of the state offices January 2.

Several of the Democratic victors have been in Lansing, formally or informally to get an idea of the task they face for the next two years at least. Governor-elect William A. Comstock, on the other hand, has sought rest at his Beaver Lake camp near Alpena. His stay there, however, has not been entirely restful for many visitors have come to call upon him with varying objectives.

Recount Wayne Votes

With the exception of the offices for which contests have been filed, the Wayne county board of supervisors expects to be able to certify the election of all candidates on the county ticket some time next week. With his action and the cerification of the Wayne vote on the state and national tickets, the state board of canvassers at Lansing will be able to complete its work and issue certificates of election to the various successful and uncontested state office candidates.

Complete official returns cast in the November 8 election for president show that Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt carried the state by 133,039 votes over Hoover. The figures, official, but not certified and subject to possible revision by any changes that may be made in the Wayne county vote, in which numerous errors have been reported are: Hoover 740,808; Roosevelt 873,847. The same reports gave Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate 39,325 votes.

Complete figures on secretary of state, official but not certified, and subject to changes in Wayne county and the recount of numerous precincts requested by both Frank D. Fitzgerald, Republican incumbent, and Burnett J. Abbott, Democratic candidate, gave Fitzgerald a margin of 3,205 votes over Abbott. The figures were: Fitzgerald 762,016; Abbott 758,811.

Governor-elect Comstock in a statement at his camp near Alpena today indicated a determination to bring about a revision of the primary election law and the state corrupt practices act. Mr. Comstock wants the present fall convention held ahead of the primary election instead of after it. He believes the corrupt practices act is meaningless because, he said no candidate possibly could go through a campaign for nomination and keep himself within the provisions of the act, especially if he were running for a state office.

In this respect Mr. Comstock brings to his attitude the experi-

Hope To Cut Price Of Milk In Chicago

Chicago, Nov. 26 (AP)—A parley of representatives of large milk companies and the Chicago Pure Milk association was scheduled for Monday to attempt to bring about definite assurance that Chicago's retail milk price will be reduced from 11 cents to nine cents a quart.

Yesterday members of the milk drivers union voted a reduction in pay from $45 to $40 a week, with the understanding, they said, that retail prices would be clipped to guarantee increased business. Both retailers and farmers, they said, had a "gentleman's agreement" to take a cut.

Today W. C. McQueen of the association, said in a statement that farmers would "balk at any offers of dealers to make the farmer stand 50 per cent of the 2 cent reduction."

Detroit Again Will Request RFC Loan

Detroit, Nov. 26 (AP)—Mayor Frank Murphy announced Saturday that Detroit will shortly apply for its third welfare loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The amount will be for the first three months of 1933, and altogether the total has not been officially stated, it is expected to be in the neighborhood of $3,000,000

Henry Ford Undergoes Operation for Hernia

Detroit, Nov. 26 (AP)—The first serious illness of his 69 years today sent Henry Ford to the hospital for an emergency hernia operation, which was pronounced a success.

The multi-millionaire ruler of a great industrial empire complained of feeling ill yesterday—he said he had a "cold"—and today his ailment was diagnosed as strangulated femoral hernia, a condition which requires immediate surgical attention.

The operation was performed at 5 p. m. at Henry Ford hospital, an institution into which Ford has put more than $10,000,000. After efforts to keep the illness of the motor car magnate a secret had failed, the hospital in a formal announcement said the operation was performed by its chief surgeon, Dr. Roy D. McClure, and added that a 8 p. m. the patient's temperature and pulse were normal.

Later tonight Dr. McClure stated that Mr. Ford's condition was "fine." It was learned also that the appendix was removed during the operation.

To these statements officials of the Ford Motor company who are close to Mr. Ford added the prediction that he would be able to return to his offices "in a week or so." They were told by Dr. McClure that "Mr. Ford is doing very well."

The illness came as a surprise even to the closest associated of Mr. Ford. A wirily robust man, the manufacturing genius who upset and remade America's industrial policies, always had boasted of his good health and was, on occasion, inclined to be rather contemptuous of disease.

Mrs. Ford, Edsel Ford, his son, and Mrs. Edsel Ford accompanied the patient to the hospital, along with Harry Bennett, head of the Ford company's service division. Mr. Ford, true to his scorn for individualism, walked to his room on the third floor of the hospital. Half of the floor had been roped off to preserve the secrecy he wanted. His face was covered, as a few minutes later, he submitted to a wheel chair to be taken to the operating room.

Mr. Ford's condition before the operation was described by surgeons as being one which usually is accompanied by "excruciating pain" and would became "extremely dangerous" in the absence of quick surgical relief.

While Mr. Ford never had been operated on for an illness before, he required surgical treatment in 1927 as the result of an automobile accident. A sprained back caused him to be kept in a plaster cast for some time.

11 Subpoenaed In Gasoline Inquiry

Lansing, Nov. 26 (AP)—Wendell Brown, assistant attorney general, Saturday subpoenaed eleven oil men of the state to appear next week before the legislative commission investigating gasoline prices in Michigan. They were directed to be prepared to answer questions regarding any possible price agreement and the wide range in prices over the state.

Negaunee Banker Is Sent to Prison

Marquette, Nov. 26 (AP)—Hjalmer Heinonen, former assistant cashier of the Negaunee State bank, closed a few weeks ago, began serving a five to twenty year sentence for embezzlement today. He pleaded guilty to embezzlement of $35,000 of the bank's funds. Circuit Judge John G. Stone recommended that he serve five years in the Marquette branch prison.

GRANGERS TALK TO ROOSEVELT

President-Elect Hears Proposals for Aid To Agriculture

BY W. B. RAGSDALE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 26 (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt moved forward today with the work of bringing together the plans of farm organizations for the relief of agriculture.

In a conference with the executive committee of the National Grange, the president-elect received their own proposals for meeting the problems of the farmer. Within recent weeks, he has talked with representatives of the Farmers Union and another meeting will be held later to receive the views of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

With these in hand, he will have the basis of a plan for farm relief legislation that can be turned over to members of the house agriculture committee for conversion into the legislation that Democratic leaders hope will help to avoid the calling of a special session of congress early in the new administration.

The five members of the executive committee of the National Grange traveled up the hill to the white cottage of the president-elect late this afternoon to tell him of the stand of their organization for maintenance of the farm marketing act by the farm board, that organization to be given authority to use either the export debenture plan, the domestic allotment plan or some other method for dealing with the farm surplus.

The group was headed by Albert H. Goss, of Washington State, chairman of the executive committee, and Louis J. Taber, of Columbus, Ohio, master of the Grange. The other members were Fred J. Freestone of New York, Eugene Eckert of Illinois and W. Kerr Scott of North Carolina, each the master of the grange in their respective states.

In the past the Grange has supported the proposal for the use of the debenture plan, but at its meeting just ended in Winston Salem, N. C., the organization broadened the scope of its stand to include the allotment plan or any other considered feasible.

The farm relief measure brought out of committee in the last session of congress represented a compromise of the views of the three major farm organizations and would have given the farm board authority to employ either the debenture, allotment or equalization fee plans.

Arms Cuts Hinge On U. S. Debts Decision

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of a series of three interpretative stories on the twin issues of war debts and disarmament.)

BY MILTON BRONNER
European Manager NEA Service

London, Nov. 26.—When the League of Nations disarmament conference meets once more in Geneva it will depend very largely upon the United States whether this meeting will be a sad disappointment, like the one of last July, or the real thing.

President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, who will be entering office about the time that representatives of 60 nations begin their deliberations, will find himself confronted with a major world problem at the very outset of his administration. And in this, he will face a difficult situation.

By the 1932 Democratic platform, Roosevelt is committed to favoring "international agreements for the reduction of armaments." By the same platform, he is committed "against cancellation of debts owing to the United States by foreign nations." Moreover, Congress has recently voted against reduction.

Obviously, any attempt to promote disarmament by oft-suggested formula—that of trading the war debts for disarmament—will be hard to reconcile with the platform on which Roosevelt was elected.

Europe—which has more men under arms today than in 1913, despite the "war to end war"—apparently is little disposed to reduce armaments unless something is given in return. Recently, there have been predictions that if the United States refuses to reduce debts the allies will refuse to ratify the Lausanne agreement

SENATE PLANS EARLY ACTION URGING REPEAL

RESOLUTION TO BE UP SOON AFTER OPENING

BY CECIL B. DICKSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 26 (AP)—A movement for early senate action on prohibition repeal developed today following announcement of plans of Speaker Garner to have the house pass on the proposition on the opening day of the short session.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, assistant Republican leader, said he favored senate consideration of a repeal resolution as soon as possible after congress convenes December 5.

Support for quick senate action was given by Senator Harrison of Mississippi, Democratic spokesman. He told reporters he had "no doubt" there were enough votes there to submit a repeal amendment.

Plans Vote December 5

Speaker Garner said "both parties have demanded an opportunity to vote and I'm going to let the house vote on it on December 5."

Although favoring early action on repeal, Representative Snell of New York, the Republican leader, expressed doubt as to the "propriety" of bringing it to a vote on the first day. He also said the Republicans probably would want to submit a resolution along the lines of their national platform in order to prevent return of the saloon. He said he would not have any objection to consideration within two weeks after the convening of congress.

Speaker Garner said Snell had "asked me to give consideration of repeal at the earliest possible moment."

The vice president-elect and Snell had discussed the action yesterday.

Garner ascertained that under the house rules, he could recognize a member to suspend the rules and adopt a repeal resolution on the first day. This procedure requires a two-thirds vote, the same as is necessary for adoption of a resolution calling for a constitutional amendment.

"The people can't get what they want by amendment to the Volstead act and I think the only thing to do is go after it manfashion through a repeal resolution," Snell told newspapermen. "It is primarily a program for the Democrats."

Garner said he would draft the resolution to be presented to the house, but declined to disclose whether it would be for direct repeal or follow the lines of the Glass proposal in the senate. Snell said he would vote for the Glass amendment, which constitutionally outlaws saloons and provides federal protection for dry states.

Brewers Summoned

Asked to explain why action on repeal was to be had before that on legalization of beer, Garner said "many gentlemen in congress in both parties favor a vote on repeal before presentation of a beer bill, and it seems to me to be the natural order of things to vote on repeal and then on beer."

Meanwhile, a committee representing brewers was summoned to meet here next week to draft a report to be submitted to the house ways and means committee when it opens hearings December 7 on a bill to modify the Volstead act.

In St. Louis today, August A. Busch, prominent brewer, in a letter to members of congress, urged legalization of beer of at least 4 percent alcohol by volume, saying that any product with any less alcoholic content "will fail to be accorded that response necessary to again popularize legal beer."

William L. Goetz, of Chicago, president of the Associated Producers of Cereal Beverages, also sent a letter to congressmen saying that a score of breweries now making near beer "unanimously recommend an alcoholic content of 2.75 percentum by weight (3.44 percent by volume)", because, he added, it was non-intoxicating in fact.

"These men would like the new act so formed," Goetz said, "as to discourage the illicit manufacturer and the bootlegger and guarantee a pure, healthful non-intoxicating beer which can be sold through the ordinary channels of distribution now in use for near beer."

Albion Murderer Sentenced to Life

Marshall, Mich., Nov. 26 (AP)—Charles Cheek, of Albion, was under a life sentence Saturday with recommendation that he never be pardoned, following his conviction on a charge of slaying Minnie Rosier at Albion, Oct. 23. Circuit Judge Blaine W. Hatch recommended he be denied pardon eligibility because he threatened Prosecutor William J. Kearney after his trial.

Noted Newspaper Executive Passes

Philadelphia, Nov. 26 (AP)—Edwin A. VanValkenburg, former president and editor of the Philadelphia North American, and in his active days one of the most widely known newspaper executives, died tonight from a heart attack.

Mr. Van Valkenburg died in the Jefferson hospital, where he had been taken about two weeks ago for treatment.

A close friend of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, who had referred to him as a "great editor and a great patriot," Mr. Van Valkenburg retired from the North American in 1924. The paper the following year was taken over by the Philadelphia Public Leader.

WAR DEBTORS RECEIVE NOTES

Poland, Czechoslovakia Told Dec. 15 Payments Expected

Washington, Nov. 26 (AP)—In almost identical notes, the state department today told Poland and Czechoslovakia the United States could not relieve them of payments due December 15 but said "the president is prepared to recommend to congress that it constitute an agency to examine the whole subject" of war debts.

Simultaneously a committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States recommended that the American government grant its war debtors "modification" conditioned on trade concessions and reduction in armament expenditures.

Containing many of the same words and phases that appeared in the notes sent previously to France, Belgium and Great Britain, the communications transmitted through the Polish embassy and the Czechoslovak legation, emphasized anew President Hoover's intention of seeking revival of the World war foreign debt commission, or a similar body.

This position contrasts with that of President-Elect Roosevelt who has declared for handling through the regular diplomatic channels any debt negotiations which may be necessary. Considerable opposition to Mr. Hoover's plan has materialized already on Capitol hill.

In the notes to Poland and Czechoslovakia, signed by Acting Secretary Castle, it was pointed out that the "ultimate decision" in respect to debts is reserved to congress.

As to the requested extension of the moratorium to cover the payments due December 15, the communications said "no authority lies within the executive to grant such an extension, and no facts have been placed in our possession which could be presented to the congress for favorable consideration."

At the same time the president was described as feeling that "for any suggested study of intergovernmental financial obligations as now existing, some such agency" as the World war foreign debt commission should be created.

Men Convicted Of Aiding Violation Of Booze Law Fined

Grand Rapids, Nov. 26 (AP)—Two men who manufactured glass contrivances in their Belding, Mich., plant today were sentenced to serve 1 year and a day each and fined $500 apiece because, a U. S. district jury decided, the articles they produced were used by liquor law violators. They were convicted of violation of the prohibition laws.

The men, Arthur C. Colvin, president of the Metal Glass Products company, and his brother, Isaac E. Colvin, a salesman, were sentenced to the U. S. industrial reformatory at Chillicothe, Ohio, by U. S. District Judge Fred M. Raymond. Attorneys for the two at once filed notice that an appeal would be taken. Bond was posted.

The defendants contended that if they as manufacturers of filters and containers could be held responsible for the use to which their products was put, then manufacturers of any article that might be used for making illicit liquor also were open to prosecution.

TOUTED CADET ATTACK FAILS AGAINST IRISH

FIRST TWO SCORES REGISTERED ON PASSES

BY ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

Yankee Stadium, New York, Nov. 26 (AP)—Picking up the habits of a cyclone somewhere along the way east, a green-jersied whirlwind carried Notre Dame to an overwhelming victory over the Army, 21 to 0, today before 80,000 spectators in the most startling upset of the intercollegiate football campaign.

The tornado in green, led by the vicious charges of two spectacular tacklers, Joe Kurth and Ed Krause, sweeping along on the terrific momentum of Koken, Melinkovich, Banas and a half dozen other ball-carriers, simply was unbeatable once it got under way. Except for two brief flashes, in the first and last periods, Army failed to display its vaunted offense.

Vidal Loose Once

Milton Summervelt, the Army captain, repeatedly broke through to smear whirling dervishes in green, or pile up the swift-moving wall of blockers that preceded every Notre Dame ball-carrier, but he was not equal to rallying his men against an irresistable force all afternoon.

The first two touchdowns, by George Melinkovich, fullback, and Hugh Devore, substitute end, were the direct results of passes into the Army end zone. The third score was the result of a fumble by Ken Fields, Army triple-threat back, in the end zone where big Jim Harris, guard, fell on the ball as it bounded loose.

Vidal, the "ball of fire," sputtered out after one solo dash that brought the crowd to its feet in the first period. Army had turned back Notre Dame's first threat, on its 12 yard line, and looked to be on the loose as Vidal broke around his right end and romped 36 yards to Notre Dame's 40. Here, Ken Fields gambled with flat, bullet-like passes, three of them in quick succession. All failed, however, and Army never was that close to the opposing goal line again except on the last play of the second quarter, when it didn't mean anything.

Notre Dame took complete command of the proceedings from the moment the first string backfield, consisting of Jaskwich, Koken, Brancheau and Melinkovich entered the game in the second period. Steadily pressing ever deeper into Army territory, they finally put over a touchdown on two quick passes in the last few minutes of the half, after twice being stopped near their objective.

Score on Passes

Melinkovich's fumble, recovered by Fields on Army's 3 yard line, checked the first drive from mid-field. The next bogged down when Army, on its 4 yard mark, hurled back four successive plays for no gain. But the soldiers left themselves wide open to air attack. Mike Koken's pass to his captain, Paul Host, was good for a 33 yard gain and put the ball on Army's 5. On the next play Koken passed to Melinkovich, who was standing in the end zone, and the deadlock was broken.

The Ramblers reached the peak of their onslaught in the third quarter, sweeping down the field

SEDAN WRECKED IN AUTO CRASH

Two Miracuously Escape Serious Injury in Collision

Two passengers in a large sedan which ran into a parked truck on highway US-2 near Pine Ridge last evening miracuously escaped serious injury but the sedan was totally demolished and a trailer loaded with six tons of hay was damaged. The accident was investigated by the Delta county sheriff's department.

Francis Ombrella, Ishpeming, suffered a broken ankle and was removed to the St. Francis hospital for observation. He is expected to be released today. H. P. Batson, of Negaunee, driver of the sedan, suffered minor bruises about the hands and face.

BE CAREFUL

More than 20 accidents have been reported to the sheriff department in the past week or two and most of them have been caused by cars slipping on the treacherous icy roads. Car drivers are requested to take extra precaution in operating their cars on slippery roads to avoid serious accidents and possible loss of life.

The truck which was parked on the highway is owned by Napolean Jean of Harris and was being operated shortly before the accident by Joseph Preston, 513 Ludington street, Escanaba. Preston reported to sheriff deputies that the truck was stalled when the battery went dead and that he could neither remove the truck from the highway nor turn on warning lights.

Preston was seeking a ride back to Escanaba to get another battery for the truck when Batson ran his car into the truck, Preston said.

Batson reported that he was travelling at a high rate of speed, probably about 55 miles an hour, when his sedan crashed into the trailer. He said he could not see the parked truck and trailer ahead of him until he was almost into the loaded trailer.

The sedan crumpled as it hit the heavy trailer and bounded back nearly 12 feet. The radiator was pushed back against the windshield and the motor of the car was completely wrecked.

Batson and Ombrella had planned to drive to Neenah, Wisconsin. Both cars were facing westward on the highway.

Bankhead Announces He Will Support Rep. McDuffie

Washington, Nov. 26 (AP)—The contest for the speakership in the next congress was intensified today by the announced candidacy of Representative Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee and a statement by Representative William B. Bankhead that he would support his Alabama colleague, Representative John McDuffie.

The Democratic floor leader, Representative Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, and Representative John E. Rankin of Mississippi, chairman of the veterans committee, previously entered the field.

"I will be a candidate," Byrns, chairman of the powerful appropriations committee, said. He did not amplify the statement.

McDuffie, party whip, and Bankhead, ranking member on the important rules committee, both have been considered by their colleagues as contenders. McDuffie has not yet announced formally.

"I shall support the candidacy of my friend and colleague, Hon. John McDuffie of Alabama, and do what I can," Bankhead said, "to secure his election.

"Many of my colleagues in the house have very kindly tendered me their support for the speakership of the seventy-third congress," Bankhead added. "I am deeply grateful for that assurance of their respect and confidence. However, for reasons I feel justify me in so deciding, I will not be a candidate for speaker."

Several other possible contenders are Representatives O'Connor of New York, Greenwood of Indiana, and Warren of North Carolina.

Representative Arnold of Illinois, chairman of the party caucus, said the 313 members-elect to the next house would be assembled probably after next March 4 to select a speakership nominee.

Speaker Garner will become vice president on March 4. Because of the overwhelming Democratic majority in the next house, Representative Snell of New York, Republican leader, will have no chance to be elected. He was the candidate against Garner in the present congress.

Report Is Awaited On Sanity Hearing In Voodoo Killing

Detroit, Nov. 26. (AP)—Police investigation into the "Order of Islam," and action against Robert Harris, a leader of the voodoo cult who killed another negro as a sacrificial offering to the order's gods, were more or less at a standstill today while a report was awaited from a sanity commission appointed to examine Harris, is awaited in recorder's court.

Harris pleaded guilty in recorder's court yesterday to having slain James J. Smith, and was remanded to await the action of the sanity commission. He told Judge John A. Boyne that he had killed Smith because "it was crucifixion time."

Officers working on the case learned last night that another "sacrifice" had been planned by another negro member of the cult, but his name was not disclosed.

Detective Sergeant Barney Seleske and Detective Harry Mikullak of the special investigation squad, were assigned to the case today and spent most of the time examining records and statements already gathered.

It was recently reported that 80 per cent of American manufacturers are dependent on agricultural products.

Bits of Cheer in Business

Chicago, Nov. 26 (AP)—The first mid-November increase in freight car loadings since 1925 was reported by the American Railway association today. Loadings for the week ended Nov. 19 were 575,851 cars, an increase of 38,758 over the volume of the week ended Nov. 12.

Washington, Nov. 26 (AP)—An increase of nine percent in the sales of American cotton piece goods to Cuba during the first nine months of this year over the corresponding period in 1931 was announced by the commerce department today. Sales were 41,916,464 square yards as compared with 38,375,316 for the same period last year.

Washington, Nov. 26 (AP)—An increase in iron and steel exports for October over September and August was announced by the commerce department. October exports were 41,226 cross tons, an increase of 5,000 over September and 8,271 over August.

San Francisco, Nov. 26 (AP)—The newly formed Pineapple Producers' Co-Operative association has announced an appropriation of $1,000,000 for advertising in magazines and newspapers in 75 cities.

Duluth, Nov. 26 (AP)—W. P. Kenney, president of the Great Northern railroad, in a statement today predicted that thousands of men will be given employment next spring in Minnesota and Michigan on the Great Lakes. Kenney based his prediction on the 5,700,000 ton reduction of iron ore stocks in eastern cities in October. He said the reduction will require the resumption of iron ore shipping next spring.

STILL RELIGION IN SOVIET UNION

Armenian Church Holds Conference, Elects Patriarch

BY STANLEY P. RICHARDSON
(Associated Press Staff Correspondent)

Moscow, Nov. 26 (AP)—Evidence that all religion is not yet dead in the Soviet Union came today in news from Erivan, capital of the Armenian Soviet Republic, that a congress of the Armenian church had been concluded after the election of a patriarch and a supreme ecclesiastical council.

The congress was held in Echmiadzin, ancient seat of the church, and was attended by 72 delegates from both Soviet and foreign bishoprics, including French, English and Americans.

The new patriarch, whose actual title in the church is Catholicos, is Horen Muradbekian, former archbishop of Erivan.

At the conclusion of the three-day meeting, which ended November 13, the congress addressed its greetings to the government of Soviet Armenia, complimenting it on the "religious tolerance of the Soviet power" in allowing the meeting to be held. The delegates also expressed "deep satisfaction at the Soviet government's unshakable policy of peace toward other nations."

The Armenian communion called the Gregorian church after "Gregory the Enlightener," has flourished since the year 451, when it declared its independence of the Byzantine church, with which it had been identified since Christianity was introduced into Armenia in the year 302.

It has followers in several foreign countries but the seat of the Catholics always has been at Echmiadzin, which lies only a few miles from Mt. Ararat.

There are no figures here at present to indicate the extent of the religion in Armenia, although it formerly had numerous communicants, but the fact that the old church exists at all in the face of the Soviet anti-religious doctrine follows out the central government's policy of allowing autonomous regions complete independence in matters of religion, education and other forms of culture. This policy is exemplified in the operation of other churches in Russia proper.

The existence of the church also is an example of the present tendency of the authorities to rely altogether on what they term the process of education, rather than to force the uprooting of religion which Lenin characterized as "the opiate of the people."

TUGS BELIEVED LOST ARE SAFE

Boats Return to Grand Marais After Riding Out Storm

Grand Marais, Mich., Nov. 26 (AP)—The fishing tugs Isabella Casey and Josephine Addison which were feared to have been wrecked last night in the same storm in which the tug Lydia and her crew of five were lost, reached Grand Marais harbor safely tonight.

The two fishing tugs, which, with the Lydia, sought shelter behind Michipicoten island Thursday night, reported that they reached Caribou island, 40 miles from here, last night, and there rode out the storm. They said the Lydia pushed on to Grand Marais.

The Lydia was wrecked at the harbor mouth.

Marine men and coast guards reported tonight that the shores of Grand Marais harbor were strewn with wreckage from the Lydia but as yet none of the bodies had been found.

The two tugs arrived here before the return of the coast guard cutter Seminole which had been set out in search of them.

Meanwhile on Lake Michigan another vessel, the 60-foot motor freighter South Shore, owned in Milwaukee, and carrying a cargo of potatoes was still missing, despite the search carried on throughout Friday night by crews of six coast guard stations. Three of these crews were forced to temporarily abandon the search because of high winds and extreme cold on the lake. Three or four men were believed to be aboard the boat which was enroute from Garden Island to Milwaukee.

Wreckage from the tug Lydia could be seen on a sandbar east of the Grand Marais breakwater this morning. None of the bodies from the tug has been found. The shore is being patrolled by the Grand Marais and Deer Park coast guard crews.

5 DAYS OVERDUE

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 26 (AP)—The South Shore, a small wooden freighter owned by the Lawrie Transit company, Milwaukee, is five days overdue on a run from Garden, Mich., to Milwaukee which ordinarily requires about 48 hours.

Coast guardsmen from Sturgeon Bay and Green Bay were searching Green Bay and Lake Michigan for trace of the vessel. The South Shore has a crew of two men commanded by Captain Ervin Tonokin.

THE HOME WRECKER

San Francisco—John F. Robanser has a passion for taking things apart, it seems, judging from his wife's application for divorce. She said that when they returned from their honeymoon, which she had to pay for, he started to remodel their home. He would pull a room to pieces and then fail to complete repairs. When she stated that she had to go to work to support herself, Judge Franklin A. Griffin gave her an interlocutory decree.

GERMANY STILL SEEKS CABINET

Hindenburg Would Like To Have Political Armistice

Berlin, Nov. 26 (AP)—President Paul Von Hindenburg closed a week of fruitless negotiations over the cabinet stalemate today by sending out two political scouts to determine whether it would be possible to call an armistice for the winter.

The men charged with this mission are General Kurt Von Schleicher, the defense minister, and Dr. Otto Meissner, the president's political secretary.

Indications were that the president would postpone for several days the appointment of a chancellor to succeed Franz Von Papen, resigned. If the "armistice" feelers prove successful, it was possible that the Von Papen interim cabinet might attempt to weather the winter.

If, however, a man is found whose personality would command the toleration of the Approval of the reichstag, he would, of course, be tasked to form a cabinet.

Among the possibilities mentioned by politicians are General Von Schleicher and Dr. Karl Goerdeler, who has served as the federal government's price commissioner. There also has been talk of Baron Konstantin Von Neurath, the Von Papen foreign minister.

There has been considerable interest in a recent speech by General Curt Von Hammerstein-Equord before an assemblage of soldiers at Nuremberg.

After discussing the cabinet crisis, the general said: "I wish to remind you that we are facing serious times and military spirits are more necessary than ever."

Adolf Hitler, national socialist leader, whom the president refused to appoint as chancellor over a cabinet responsible to the executive instead of to the reichstag, went to Weimar today to address a mass meeting.

HUMAN BLOODHOUNDS

Saginaw, Mich.—The police force has little use for bloodhounds when it has Patrolmen George Danks and Fred Karp. These men while walking their beat early one morning recognized an odd odor as that of burning chicken feathers. Tracing the odor around the block they came upon three men who had 14 chickens all ready for cooking.

ence of four campaigns for governor, three of which he financed himself and only the one just closed a successful effort.

"I shall recommend," he said, "that the limit on campaign expenditures be removed, but that teeth be put into the enforcement provisions so that any and all candidates would be forced to publish the source of their funds and the purposes for which they were expended."

Of the primary election law he said he believed a pre-primary meeting would "discourage the self starter." The pre-primary convention, he said, would re-establish party responsibility. The governor-elect proposes that the pre-primary convention endorse a limited number of candidates, possibly two, to go into the primary.

If the voters did not care for the convention selections, he said, "They still could make their selection from outside."

Mr. Comstock expects to be too busy all of next month and the first month at least of his tenure of office to make any speeches or public appearances not directly required by his office. He has notified Alfred Debo, chairman of the state central committee, to cancel all speaking engagements and other appearances previously arranged.

In Wayne county the canvassing board plans to take no action toward recounting the vote for secretary of state ad for congress in the fifteenth district until it receives orders from Secreary of State Fitzgerald. Judge Henry S. Hulbert, chairman of the board, said that as soon as the vote tangle has been unscrambled the interested parties will be called together to determine the character of ballots to be accepted and rejected.

In cases where the number of votes cast exceeds the number of persons registered ballots will be drawn from the boxes until those left equal the registration. These ballots will be destroyed, uncounted.

COME! COME!

Birmingham, Ala.—When winter blows its icy breath through these parts this year, J. T. Wingard will have one vivid memory of summer to keep him warm. He recently went out to gather some popcorn in his field. He found an ear already popped by the heat of the sun.

PRISONER KILLS KEEPER, SELF

Gets Gun Smuggled Into Brooklyn City Jail By His Wife

New York, Nov. 26 (AP)—Using a pistol believed to have been smuggled in to him by his comely young wife, a confessed bank robber killed the head keeper of Brooklyn city prison, wounded a priest and then killed himself before his wife's eyes tonight when he found escape impossible.

The shooting tripped off a riot alarm which brought 400 policemen, armed with tear gas and submachine guns, screaming to the prison in radio cars. But other inmates, unaware of the disturbance, remained quiet.

Mrs. Lucille McCormick, blonde stenographer wife of Andrew "Red" McCormick, 28, was believed to have precipitated the shooting. Authorities said she admitted slipping a pistol to her husband while kissing him goodbye in the visitors' reception room.

Commands Keys

"Give me the keys and give them to me quick," McCormick commanded, pointing the weapon at Herbert Nolan, the guard standing outside the door. Nolan protested he didn't have them.

Head Keeper William McConnell emerged from his office, nearby, attracted by the disturbance. Seeing McCormick armed he reached for his own pistol, but was felled by a bullet near the heart, dying immediately.

McCormick, followed by his screaming wife, rushed back toward the cell blocks, apparently with the intention of liberating his younger brother, Michael, who was to have been sentenced with him Monday on bank robbery charges.

Finding the way barred, he turned back toward the front, while Nolan took up a position behind a post and kept up a stream of bullets, none of which took effect.

Warden Honeck arrived at this juncture, followed by his son, the Rev. Harry L. Honeck, Jr., and both came under McCormick's fire. One bullet struck the warden's shoe, glanced off and hit his son in the knee.

McCormick, finding escape cut off, disappeared around a corner and shot himself through the temple, falling dead at his wife's feet.

Meanwhile two policemen assigned to special guard duty outside the prison, which is known as the Raymond street jail, as a result of recent rumors of a jail delivery plot, had sounded an alarm.

The delivery reports arose when Irving Bitz, who figured in the Lindbergh case as an underworld negotiator, was arrested the other day in a house across the street.

McCormick's wife was held for questioning by District Attorney F. X. Geoghan, who said she admitted smuggling the revolver.

OBITUARY

MABEL JOHNSON

Funeral services for Mabel Johnson, 314 North Twentieth street, were held at the Anderson Funeral Home 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, with Rev. C. A. Lund officiating. Burial was in Lakeview cemetery. The pallbearers were Carl Rehnquist, Victor Olson, Henry Olson, John Olson, Ernest Olson and Andrew Monson.

FORD GOES UNDER KNIFE

Surgeons explained that his illness—strangulated femoral hernia—is accompanied usually by "excruciating pain," and that unless surgical relief is given immediately is "extremely dangerous."

Mr. Ford, apparently in vigorous health and certainly boastful of his vitality at the age of 69, diagnosed his own condition as a "cold" to his associates at the Ford Motor company yesterday, and it was only the continuation of pain in more severe form today which caused him to enter as a patient the hospital named for him.

Surgeons explained that a hernia is said to be strangulated when the displaced part of the internal anatomy is so tightly constricted that circulation is arrested. If the condition is not relieved, gangrene sets in.

The official hospital announcement of the operation said:

"Henry Ford underwent an emergency operation for strangulated femoral hernia at 5 o'clock this afternoon. At 8 o'clock his temperature and pulse were normal.

"Dr. Roy D. McClure, chief surgeon of Henry Ford hospital, performed the operation.

"Mrs. Henry Ford and Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Ford were at the hospital."

All subsequent informal reports were optimistic.

New Superintendent

Marinette—G. E. Denman, principal of East high school, Green Bay, has been elected superintendent of Marinette public schools. He will succeed C. E. Hulten, who on Dec. 1 will give up his position as superintendent to take a similar post at Sheboygan. The board of education considered seven applications for the position in Marinette.

May Hunt Deer

Iron River—Amos 'n Andy, of radio fame, who spent a few days in Iron county during the deer hunting season last year may return again this year, according to Rep. Joe Green, of Crystal Falls.

Andy, the masterful, filled his license with a fine buck last year and Amos, not to be outdone, wants to have a chance this year to display his prowress as a hunter.

Mr. Green met Amos in Chicago recently and was informed that the two would attempt to visit Iron county again. If they visit here, it is probable that the party will consist of practically the same group as last year.

Brewery For Sale

Sault Ste. Marie—"The Sault Ste. Marie brewery is still for sale," Donald Finlayson, receiver said Wednesday. "There is nothing in it in the way of equipment," he said when interviewed regarding prospects of it starting up in the event beer is legalized.

All brewing equipment has been sold, Mr. Finlayson said, adding it would take some time to bring in new machinery and put it together before brewing could start.

Part of the brewery is now used as a creamery.

Children's Fund Meeting

Marquette—A two day conference, attended by doctors, dentists and nurses from all parts of the upper peninsula, who are conducting the work of the Michigan's Children's fund, will be concluded at the Northern Michigan Children's clinic here today.

Among those in attendance are Miss Eloise Pichette, Miss Arda Muck, Miss Josephine Kalmer and Miss Ella James, of the Menominee unit nursing staff; Dr. Goldie Corneliuson, health educationalist; Dr. Marion Stevenson, of Detroit, opthamologist; Miss Rheba Harris, of Lansing, state department of public instruction; Miss Leila Cheney, of Mt. Pleasant, United States Indian service; Miss Elma Rood, of Detroit, director of health education for the Michigan Children's fund; Miss Ruth Scott, Keweenaw county and north Houghton county nurse; Miss Josephine Polivka, west Mackinac county nurse; Miss Hilma Aslkinson, Chippewa county nurse; Mrs. Gertrude B. Hensen Houghton county nurse; Mrs. Mildred Ruggles, Alger county nurse; Miss Winifred Golley, Baraga county nurse; Miss Eva Robitalles, east Mackinaw county nurse; Arthur Davis, Northern State Teachers college.

SHE TOOK NO CHANCES

Boston—People may laugh at superstition, but not Mrs. Thelma I. Morrell. The other day in probate court Mrs. Morrell was stepping onto the witness stand in her suit for divorce from Gerald V. Morrell, when she dropped her glove. Looking at the glove, she said: "I don't like to pick it up. It's supposed to be bad luck to pick up your own glove." Her attorney quickly stooped and picked up the glove and returned to to its owner. Mrs. Morrell won her case.

Elias Will Speak Here On Wednesday

George Elias, world traveler and lecturer, will speak at the senior and junior high school auditoriums next Wednesday morning and afternoon. The public is invited to attend.

Elias was born in Mesopotamia, served with the Foreign Legion in the fighting against the Turks, and was an eye-witness to the Russian revolution in 1917.

Among the subjects on which Mr. Elias speaks are the following: "A Shepherd of the East," "One Hour in Mesopotamia," "Revolt in the Desert," "Visit of the Wise Men," "Russian Revolution," "Boyhood of Abraham," "Wanderer of the East," "Man Without a Country," "Oriental Marriage Customs."

THREE CHARGED WITH PIG THEFT

Schoolcraft County Men Are Held at Delta County Jail

Authorities believe that they have cleared up a number of recent farm thefts with the arrest of Dan Hayden, 44, of Gulliver, Russell Oliver, 20, of Manistique, and Orvil Robinson, 21, of Gulliver, who are in the Delta county jail awaiting arraignment on a breaking and entering charge.

The men were arrested at Manistique, and were turned over to Henry Breault and C. L. Tordeur, Delta county deputies, at the county line. Officers said that when the three were taken into custody at Manistique they had in their possession some pigs and chickens stolen from the Joseph St. John farm, 3½ miles south of Garden, Thursday night. The missing stock included 4 pigs and 12 chickens, but some of the loot had been disposed of when the men were arrested. Mr. St. John will file a complaint, and arraignment is scheduled at Escanaba Monday.

Serve 60 Days For Killing Doe

Philip Fox, White Cloud, and William Kimperman, Grand Rapids, are serving terms of 60 days each in the Marquette County jail, convicted of killing and possessing a doe deer out of season.

Conservation officers claimed to have found the body of a doe in a trapper's shack occupied by the two men. They were unable to pay fines of $100 imposed as alternative to jail sentences.

Down-and-Outers Refuse Charity

New York, Nov. 2.. (AP)—The inhabitants of Hardluck-on-the-River tonight rejected a community Mulligan stew, mittens, canvas belts and 30 sleeping bags provided by Urbain Ledoux, better known as Mr. Zero.

The colony on the lower east side is the home of some 250 jobless men. A group of about 30 kicked apart a brick stove on which Mr. Zero's stew was to be cooked, told him in a chorus that his "one-day-a-year charity" was not desired and departed to dinners of their own in their packing box shacks.

"They're just boys, just boys," said Mr. Zero, adding that the trouble was started by a small group of "malcontents."

Stage Being Set for Huge Show at Chicago's 1933 World's Fair

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A Star Beam, imprisoned by science, will swing open the doors to the 1933 Chicago World's Fair. This will be symbolic of the portrayal of man's scientific progress, described in this last article of a series on this exposition.)

BY HOMER MC COY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Chicago, Nov. 25 (AP)—The Word's Fair of 1893 presented a still-life picture of man's accomplisments. The century of progress will dramatize them.

One was a static portrayal. The other will be a vast revue, composed of many acts. A comparison is that between a zoo and a collection of mummies in a taxidermist's shop.

There wasn't much motion about the Columbian exposition. A few engines in machinery hall rumbled and snorted. And the fish in the federal building aquarium swam dully about as fish generally do, utterly lacking in dramatic interest.

The century of progress will mark a departure from all this. Man will be secondary to his accomplishments. He is the producer of the play, but after arranging the stage and shifting the scenes, he retires to the wings.

Nature's Own

The Hall of Science displays are illustrative of this. Here, working models show such intagible and fleeting phenomena as chemical and biological changes—the union of elements, the growing of cells.

The theatricsm of science are brought out and ponderous text book terms become titles of dramas.

Through electrical devices, the models re-enact their parts continuously in the portrayal of man's scientific progress. The men who designed these become mere "stooges." It's nature's own show.

Both the Century of Progress and the Columbian Exposition had their keynote exhibits. Next June, it will be the Hall of Science. At the 1893 fair, a celebration of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America, visitors saw replicas of the three ships which carried Columbus and his men across the Atlantic. One of them still floats in Jackson Park yacht harbor, spared the ignominy of being converted into a sea-food restaurant.

But all will not be educational of expository of progress.

There'll be the Midway, that thoroughfare of fun—a county fair eitified.

More, Gigger Rides

A blimp and observation balloons will carry crowds over the grounds. So will the "sky-rides"—two towers 600 feet high with steel cables suspended between, over which rocket cars shuttle back and forth, like the overhead cash-carriers in a department store.

The "rides" of old will be higher and faster, with more curves and dips. Too, the visitors can peek in at the summer house of the old Manchu dynasty in China, the golden temple of Jehol, sent piece-meal across the Pacific to rest by the shores of lake Michigan.

There'll be no lonesome minutes for the old-timers who recall the Midway Plaisance of the Columbian exposition—that street of old-world glamour—where Budapest, Vienna and Cairo brushed shoulders.

On that old Midway, one "haggled for curios with swart followers of Mahomet;" watched the war dance of dusky Amazonian belles and sipped his beer in a transplanted Berlin garden.

One also sat where the "Streets of Cairo" and went away singing about them. That song, "The Streets of Cairo," is still sung, with smoking car variations.

It was one of the most lasting contributions of the Columbian Exposition.

Seniors at Rock To Present Play

Rock, Mich.—The Senior class play, "Sonny Jane," will be presented at the Rock high school auditorium on Tuesday evening, Nov. 29 at 8 o'clock.

The play is a three act comedy written by Eugene Hafer. The seniors have been practicing diligently under the direction of their advisor, Miss Florence McLain, and are confident that the public will be treated to an evening of real entertainment.

Besides the presentation of "Sonny Jane," several musical numbers have been arranged as specialties between acts. Miss Anna Quarnstrom and Albert Sayen will present vocal solos, while Miss Blanche Mathison, Walford Latvala and William Johnson will entertain with the piano, clarinet and saxophone, respectively.

"Sonny Jane" is being presented by special permission of the Eldridge Entertainment House.

The cast is as follows:

Sonny Jane Marquard—Rauha Hakanen.
Charles Mitchell—Arthur Johnson.
Lucille Brander—Vivian Harju.
Larry Randolph—Arnold Sayen.
Sam Streck—Frank Besaw.
Freddie Beadle—Walfred Latvala.
Joe Martin—John Niemi.
Pansy—Guenevere Utt.
Peggy Foster—Evelyn Miljour.
Mrs. Amelia Spitzendorf—Hazel Stewart.
Nancy Wade—Mary Gibbs.
Ruby Wade—Josephine Bridges

FISH HALT TRIAL

Birmingham, Ala.—The trial of Gus Walker, who was charged with burglary, can be held any day but Friday and Saturday. When Walker's case came up for trial it was found that Walker was serving time on the county roads on another charge and the case was to be reset. Saturday is an off day to start a trial, and Jim McK. Long, assistant solicitor, asked that Friday be excluded, because all the witnesses work in the fishhouse, and Friday is their busy day.

The World's Largest Builder of Automobiles

For the fourth time in six years, the American public has awarded Chevrolet first place in motor car sales. This nationwide expression of public preference is naturally a source of pride and satisfaction to Chevrolet. Especially so, because it has come during the years when people have been most careful and most critical in their selection of low-priced cars.

So today, the Chevrolet Motor Company joins with its dealers in extending thanks to the American public. Chevrolet deeply appreciates the loyalty and goodwill which have brought about its present position in the industry. Chevrolet gladly accepts all the responsibilities that come with such leadership. And Chevrolet makes the following pledge to its millions of owners and other friends throughout the nation:

The new Chevrolet car, to be announced next month, will return to the public—in the form of greater value—every advantage that can accrue from Chevrolet's position as the world's largest builder of automobiles. What America has done to benefit Chevrolet . . . will now be utilized to benefit America.

In this way, the Chevrolet Motor Company hopes to express its appreciation, fully and fittingly, to the millions of men and women who have made possible its leadership. The new Chevrolet for 1933 will be another way of saying, "Thank you, America!"

MARTIN BRADLEY ON PROHIBITION

WHEN Representative Martin R. Bradley of Menominee county announced that he was a candidate for the speakership of the Michigan House of Representatives, a hue and cry went up from the Chicago Tribune that Martin Bradley was "too dry" to be an acceptable speaker for wet Michigan. Apparently our contemporary did not take into consideration the difference that exists between temperance and prohibition.

Martin Bradley has practiced temperance all his life. That is his chosen way of living and he is to be admired for it but there is a big difference between temperance and prohibition and no better example of that was established than when the Menominee representative voted for immediate repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment at the National Democratic Convention. It is men like Bradley who are entitled to commendation, not criticism for positions of that kind.

Bradley soon put an end to any fear of his alleged dryness when he issued a statement in Menominee Saturday to the effect that he would stand unequivocally on his position at the national convention. No one could ask anything further from a man than that.

So much for the wet and dry part of the coming election.

That is settled by the statement. Martin Bradley has other splendid qualities which should win him much favor when the caucus of the ruling party is held. His fearlessness, his fairness, ability to analyze questions and foresee the dangers of radical legislation make him a candidate well worth considering.

He has seniority rights which must be contended with before he can be considered anything but up front in the picture and politically speaking that counts for a great deal. But in addition he has the respect of his political opponents. With that he should be able to build a strong feeling of cooperation in the next legislature. That is what we need at this time.

Martin Bradley has everything necessary to make an ideal speaker.

NEED FOR ECONOMY

ECONOMY and efficiency in government are more needed today than ingenious means of raising additional tax revenue, according to the current issue of The Guaranty Survey, published by the Guaranty Trust company of New York.

"The tax problem as a whole must remain unsolved as long as the public fails to offer the same vigorous protest against the rising cost of local governments as it has in regard to some of the excessive expenditures of the federal government in the recent past," the Survey declares.

"Those who would argue that the huge sums of money spent pay a social dividend should remember that in many instances the cost is heavier than the benefits warrant, that the projects frequently require the issuing of bonds by states and municipalities whose credit standing may already be endangered by a total public debt out of balance with the tax-paying abilities of their residents, and that they are for the most part non-productive enterprises. Not only are industry and business taxed heavily for reckless government expenditures, which lowers both their employing capacity and the level of wages that they are able to pay; but all economic effort and capital that go into the creation of unnecessary and extravagant public projects and services reduce by just that much the supply of more necessary and more desirable economic goods.

"Obviously, the rate of increase in the cost of government cannot continue long as it has in the last several years without affecting the economic welfare of every individual in this country. It is to be hoped that the recent demand for economy in the Federal Government will be followed by an active public interest and resentment regarding the excesses in local and state governments—a resentment and interest which, to be totally effective, must be incorporated as a principle of democratic government and not merely as a depression expedient. If this should be the case, there is little doubt that our governments in the future will require the services of experts in economy and efficiency; and many other experts well versed in creating ingenious methods of raising additional revenue with a minimum of irritation to the taxpayers will fall into the discard."

JOB INSURANCE AND A NEW ERA

IN THE American Federation of Labor's demand for nation-wide compulsory unemployment insurance, it is not hard to see a pretty clear indication that an era in American life has come to an end.

The great period of rugged individualism, traditional in America since the first pioneer put up a log cabin on the edge of a wilderness and started grubbing in the virgin soil to make a garden, seems to be just about played out.

The labor federation does not call for unemployment insurance through the government. It insists that the job is one for industry to shoulder alone. It declares that "work or relief must be provided," and in that statement presents the new attitude which justifies one in saying that an era is ending.

By all our old traditions, a factory owner never had any more real responsibility for the welfare of his employes, outside of working hours, than he had for the hungry natives of Patagonia. He opened his plant, paid the current wages to anyone who cared to take a job—and that was all there was to it. If he had to curtail operations because of hard times, and thereby threw men out of work, it was too bad, of course, but it wasn't up to him to worry about it. This was a free country, and a man could do as he pleased with his own.

The only trouble with that system is that it doesn't work any more. The industrialist is a key man in a complicated social system, and there is on him a duty quite aside from the duty he owes his stockholders and his customers. Whether he makes automobiles or clothespins, he is not, in the old sense, a private citizen. How he runs his business and how he gets on with his workers are matters in which the public at large has a direct interest.

The federation demands unemployment insurance supported by industry alone; and the odds are that sooner or later the demand will be granted. The alternative is a venture into a kind of state socialism, for government unemployment insurance implies a degree of government interference with business greater than anything we have ever dreamed of. Either way, the old day of complete freedom in the industrial world is ended.

CONSERVATION TRICKS

A NEWSPAPER relates that conservation officers in the Upper Peninsula this year have resorted to "a novel and somewhat amusing method of outwitting deer shiners. They use what might be called a deer decoy, a deer head in silhouette, cut out of heavy roofing paper. A black spot is rubbed on for a nose to add realism to the head and a pair of highway sign reflectors are inserted for eyes."

If conservation officers are tricking hunters in order to obtain convictions, they ought to stop the practice at once. There is no better way to create disrespect for conservation officers than by resorting to tricks. Disrespect for the officers brings disrespect for conservation laws and in the end the cause of conservation suffers immeasurably.

It is a surprise to learn the department sanctions tactics of that nature.—Ironwood Globe.

With liens levied on his personal effects, maybe Jimmy Walker, New York's former mayor, will make some inquiries into Gandhi's budget for food and raiment while he's in India.

STYLES

The clothes we used to wear, good land!
Today it's hard to understand
Why anyone would wear a hat
Like that,
And yet we thought it grand.

The clothes we used to wear, good grief!
The things too long, the things to brief,
The things too large, the things too small,
They all
Are quite beyond belief.

The clothes we used to wear, good gosh,
Must have looked funny in the wash,
And even funnier on me.
Yet we
Then thought them rather tosh.

The clothes we used to wear back when:
When will we see their likes again?
Those styles will likely re-arrive
In five
More years, or surely ten.

Week-end Murder

(By NEA Service) BY GABRIELLE E. FORBUSH

Tom started upstairs, then stopped as another thought struck him.

"Must they all stay on the place, Tim? Is it—that official? There doesn't seem any reason that they should have to be cooped up here. After all, it's a formality, as you say, and if they golf or swim or go in the boat during the afternon there should be no trouble. I'll give you my word they'll all be back at 6."

"Of course not, of course not," began Dr. Parsons angrily. "This isn't arrest, my boy. Even Boyle wouldn't expect to confine you all to the house all day. In fact, of all meddling, interfering, officious——unofficiousness——" Conscious that he was repeating himself, he sputtered off into silence.

Tim, accustomed to regarding the doctor's authority with a respect amounting almost to veneration, was glad enough to yield the point.

"Oh, no, sir—it's as Dr. Parsons says. Nothin' but to ask a few questions, inspect the scene of the accident and close the matter. So long as those who were in the house this mornin' when it happened are here for Dr. Boyle to talk to when he comes, 'twill be all right."

"And you said he wouldn't be back till after 6?"

"He said he would not hurry himself in the least for any—for anybody," finished Tim weakly. The others, knowing the subdued, yet fierce, hatred of the old-time political gang and its henchmen for the opposing element of the summer colony, recognized the caution which deleted the medical examiner's exact and lurid wording.

AS Tom started upstairs his mother, looking as cool and poised as though she were on a delightful visit, came in the long casement window which gave on the front lawn. Tim, far more constrained with this aristocratic member of the older order than with the democratic younger generation, hastened to mumble his apologies and farewells and disappeared with a promise to return when Dr. Boyle was imminent. Kathleen Averill greeted the doctor with some surprise.

"Dr. Parsons—did you have to come back? Linda seems quite all right again."

The doctor, too, seemed decidedly less peppery under her detached, somewhat amused survey.

"Little misunderstanding," he grumbled. "Tim called me up at home but I couldn't believe what he said and came over here to hear it for myself. It's true, though. That fool Boyle—he's county medical examiner, Mrs. Averill—a political job and he pays about as much attention to it as a horsefly would—has got up on his high horse because—well, because I let them move the body this morning. That isn't strictly legal. I should have had his permission or waited longer to get it—and Boyle chooses to make trouble and say that no one can leave the house until he has questioned them all."

"Linda!" Kathleen Averill was entirely sympathetic as she turned to the daughter who seemed unexpectedly calm under this untoward happening. "What a shame! You'll have those—"

"Sh, darling!" Linda pointed upward where doors might be open. "I don't mind—in fact, I'd a little rather they were here!"

"Gives you something to think about, I suppose," mused the older woman. "Not bad at that. I was going to wander off toward my own house now but perhaps you'd like me to stay?"

"Not a bit of it! You've done everything you could. You were a dear to get up at such an ungodly hour and fly to me! Rosie and Annie will more or less take charge."

Dr. Parsons broke in abruptly. "Car's here," he said. "If you could call it a car. Drop you off if you like. Hop in. I've got a call to make out West Road."

As the two women kissed lightly their eyes met in amusement.

"I'll hop," said Kathleen Averill with serene dignity and left a smiling Linda who had for a moment forgotten her crowding troubles.

CHAPTER XVII

IN THE silence after the little car shot out of the stone gateway Linda heard Tom emerging from one upstairs room and caught the words, "very good of you——" As he stopped at another door she suddenly remembered that only three of their guests were here in the house. Tom still had one of them to notify as well as the one whom she had quartered in the garage.

"I'll run over myself and tell Mr. Shaughnessey," she thought impulsively and had pushed the screen door open before something checked her like the touch of a cold hand.

She stood on the threshold of their house and looked across the road and little lawn toward the garage. A silence so profound that it seemed to have weight and depth lay over the peaceful little scene, so clear was the day and so hot the air that clothed the world. Each pebble in the roadway stood out distinctly from its fellow, each blade of grass held itself erect and alone, unswept by the slightest current of air. The slight roughness of the stucco-walled garage showed like the moon's surface, pitted with little dark valleys, high-lighted with tiny pinnacles. Above, the roof was a red that hurt and where the scalloped tiles met the walls the shadows were geometrically even and dark and flat. There was a sense of unreality about all she saw—and yet it had a terrible, pressing nearness which made her want to scream and run. Anything to break that air of still suspense!

The garage—that was where she had started to go. And in the garage was a man. Just an ordinary, pleasant, well-dressed, well-mannered man. Or rather perhaps not quite ordinary, for genius—if he was a genius—never is that. Certainly Lian Shaughnessey, in both appearance and behavior, was rather unusual, though on the side of distinction. What was there then about the thought of him that had stopped her as though by an invisible hand? She did not know, but she knew she was physically incapable of forcing herself to step into the roadway, walk across the lawn and go up that short flight of steps. In fact she could not even face the idea of it.

TOM, swinging downstairs with the satisfied air of one who has accomplished what he set out to do, found her sitting on the little hall bench and he did not guess the effort it took her to smile up at him as he stopped before her.

"How did they take it?" she enquired.

"All right—I'll tell you later—upstairs." She nodded as his voice dropped warningly.

"I'll just run over to the garage now and tell Shaughnessey," he went on and the words, so exactly her own thought of the moment before, brought her instantly to her feet.

"I'll—I'll walk over with you." It was unbearable that Tom should go off so cheerfully, alone, into the little building that had once seemed so commonplace and now had grown so strangely alien. Disregarding his surprise, she walked primly beside him. If she talked her teeth would chatter and that would hurt her pride! But she was entirely willing to remain downstairs while he ran up and knocked on the door and, standing on the first step of the little flight, she had no need to strain her ears to catch Tom's part, at least, of the conversation.

"Hello, Shaughnessey! Oh, sorry—didn't mean to wake you up!" (He could sleep, exhausted, whatever had happened this morning!) "I won't be a moment. Just wanted to ask you if you would mind staying on the rest of the day. There's been a little misunderstanding about the accident this morning. Our doctor's a bit apt to go his own way regardless of the regulations and he should-n't have permitted the body to be moved so quickly. He okayed our taking it to Port and now that's got us all in dutch. The county medical examiner is away but he's coming back and, just to show he's boss, he's ordered us all to stay until he can go over the ground and go through the proper formalities. He's due around dinner time so if you don't mind—"

Then a sleepy murmur and when Tom spoke again his voice sounded decidedly relieved.

"That's fine. Luncheon won't be for an hour or so. Will you feel like coming over or would you rather—?" Again the murmur and again Tom sounded relieved. "Good! We'll look for you at 1 then."

LINDA was strolling toward the house when Tom caught up with her.

"So that's all right, Binks, my child," he said cheerfully. "The beggar was still half asleep when I left but he knows he's to stay and since he hadn't made a move toward going so far as I could see—"

"Well," Linda tried to be just. "He was up early this morning—as you remember!"

"Yes—I remember."

Instinctively they lowered their voices.

"I told the others to come down whenever they were ready," said Tom. "That you would be down to luncheon but would rest until then in your room."

"Where you will join me—for

Announcements have been received in the city of the marriage at Aberdeen, Wash., of Miss Ida Fielding Greene, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Greene of Aberdeen, to Victor Herbert Street, also of that city. Rev. Greene served as rector of the St. Stephen's Episcopal church for a number of years.

Although John E. Jackson has had his arm fractured since Saturday night, he was not aware that it was anything more than a severe bruise until he consulted a physician Sunday. On Saturday night Mr. Jackson was cranking his automobile and in some manner his hand slipped from the crank, striking the lamp of the car and causing a fracture.

Word was received in the city yesterday of the death at Allegan, Mich., of Max Eggleston Kennedy, brother of William L. and James Kennedy of this city, and a former resident of Ford River and Escanaba.

Well now we got this tax Amenment past in Mich. so farmers onley pay $15 a thousend we wonder who is going to get the First Crack at that $15 and they way it use to be the farmer pay his tax to the county and the county give it to the state and the state give it to the Govt. and the Govt. lend it back to the farmer at 5½ precent

The Hens on farms are Smart today
When Winter Comes they will not Lay
And prices of the Eggs go High
For those which boil or poach or fry

The Farmer Cant aford to eat his pigs and when he wants some meat
He has to bite the Porkers ear
Because the rest is much too Dear

Now some folks they have shot a Buck
And others have not had much luck

JUDGE SUSTAINS JURY'S VERDICT

Judgment of $24,700 Is Entered in Favor of Gladstone Youth

Motions asking a judgement in favor of the defendants in the case of Armand La Pointe of Gladstone against the A. & P. company are denied in an opinion given by Circuit Judge Frank A. Bell of Negaunee. His opinion sustains the verdict of the jury, and orders judgement entered for the plaintiff on the verdict.

The case was an action brought by Mrs. Frances La Pointe, mother of Armand, against C. W. Chevrette and the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., asking damages for personal injuries claimed to have been sustained by Armand while he was in the employ of the A. & P. Co. Gladstone store on March 6, 1929. The trial took place at the last term of Delta county circuit court, and the jury rendered a verdict of approximately $24,700 against both the defendants.

After the verdict was announced, counsel for the defendants moved the court for judgement notwithstanding the verdict and judgement in favor of the defendants for the court for judgement notwithstanding the verdict and judgement in favor of the defendants for the reason that answers to special questions submitted the jury were inconsistent with the general verdict. In moving for a judgement notwithstanding the verdict, defense counsel held that the declaration was improperly worded, giving the impression that the suit was brought by Mrs. La Pointe for injuries to herself. The judge's opinion, however, declared that:

"While the declaration can hardly be said to be a model of legal craftmanship its meaning is plain, the evidence was all directed to injuries to the boy, and if its defects are more serious it can be now corrected by amendment." The judge ruled that all other questions in dispute were questions for the jury.

In the matter of the answers to special questions, Judge Bell's opinion found them "not contradictory to nor controlling of the general verdict."

Miss Merle Brown Dies; Rites to Be Held at Escanaba

Word was received in Escanaba Saturday of the death at Michigan City, Ind., of Miss Merle E. Brown, former resident of Escanaba, cousin of Mrs. Walter Dickson of this city. Miss Brown was born at Escanaba in 1908, and for the last 12 years lived at Michigan City with her mother, Mrs. A. W. Cutting, formerly Mae Lloyd. The survivors include also a brother, Gordon, and an aunt Mrs. F. G. Huston, Chicago. The late Cecil Campbell of Escanaba was a cousin.

The body is being brought to Escanaba for burial, and will arrive Monday, according to word received by the Allo funeral home, who will be in charge of arrangements. It will be taken to the Dickson home, 1016 Eighth avenue South, and the funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday from the home, with the Rev. Carl Berger of the Presbyterian church officiating. Burial will be in Lakeview cemetery.

Accompanying the body here for the last rites will be Mr. and Mrs. Dickson, city, Mrs. Cutting, Gordon Brown and Mrs. Huston.

ARMS CUTS HINGE ON U. S. DEBTS

which virtually cancels reparations. And every political party in Germany is determined not to pay another penny of reparations, come what may.

Three Plans

But the League of Nations is going ahead with its plans for the disarmament conference, in which the United States will be represented. The conference will have before it the elaborate proposals of Premier Herriot of France and Sir John Simon of Great Britain, in addition to President Hoover's proposal which remains on its calendar from last summer.

Hoover said the way to disarm was to disarm. He got down to figures and proposed something like a drastic cut of 25 per cent in armaments. He said in this way the world could be relieved of a large part of the crushing burden that endangered peace and retarded economic recovery.

Britain wanting to keep its navy, France desiring to keep its army and Japan anxious to preserve both its army and its navy, all were hostile. The French and the Japanese were openly so. The British were more circumspect, because Sir John Simon—being an adroit lawyer—knew how to word his way through the deliberations without committing his country. Germany was keen for the plan. So were Italy and Russia.

But Hoover did not force his proposal to a vote. All that was accomplished last summer was an agreement to prohibit the use of poison gas and disease germs in warfare — something that had been agreed upon years before. A pious wish to limit tanks, big guns and military aircraft was registered, but no figures were assigned and no limits fixed. A declaration also was made in favor of international control of civil aircraft to prevent their use for bombing in wartime.

Pious Wishes

The net result of the July conference was that not a ship was cut out of the navies, not one tank or big gun or military airplane was marked for destruction. The world was left very much as it was before—armed to the teeth.

Since this fiasco, however, several things have happened which may have a bearing on world peace.

A federation of all the League of Nations societies in the world has demanded:

1—That the five classes of aggressive weapons now forbidden to Germany, Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria shall be forbidden to the rest of the world. These weapons are military aircraft, submarines, tanks, large mobile guns and battleships above 10,000 tons.

2—That civil aircraft shall be internationally controlled to prevent use for bombing.

3—The use of poison gas and disease germs having been forbidden, preparation of the same for such use likewise should be forbidden.

4—In addition, the military and naval budgets should be cut 25 per cent (Hoover's figure).

5—Most important of all, the private manufacture of arms should be prohibited to end "dollar interest" in wars and war scares on the part of fselfish munitions makers.

Only a few months ago there was held in Vienna a meeting of vast significance. It was the eighth congress of the Ciamac, an international federation of war-wounded men and former combatants. Unlike many similar organizations, this one comprises veterans from both the allied and central powers.

The Soldiers' View

These ex-enemies, now banded in a common cause, resolved unanimously that all talk of "humanizing" war was folly and the public should be so told; that former combatants should be put on guard against movements already started to make the next disarmament conference a failure; that all military organizations working for the preparation of war should be suppressed; that there should be rigorous international control of the budgets for armies, navies and air forces and that the private manufacture and sale of arms should be stopped.

Finally, the Ciamac asked its four million members to talk to their fellow citizens and impress upon them the serious danger of a new war unless the next disarmament conference is a success.

Apparently, this is beginning to bear fruit already. There is every indication that the forthcoming conference will hear strong proposals for abolition of submarines, for abolition of bombing aircraft, for abolition of large mobile guns designed for aggressive use and for abolition of large tanks that are also designed for aggression.

Debts for Arms

Since President Hoover presented his plan, Senator Borah and some of the most influential newspapers in the United States have come out strongly for cellation of the war debts the allies owe America. But with this they have coupled the proviso that the allies must, in return, take positive steps toward real disarmament.

Senator Borah has been outspoken for debt revision in return for measures of this kind. Though he is due to be succeeded as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee when the Democratic administration takes over the reins of government, he will remain as minority leader in that important committee and doubtless will play an important part in the affairs of the Senate.

In line for chairman as Borah's successor is Senator Claude A. Swanson, Virginia, ranking Democratic member. Swanson was one of the American delegates to the Geneva disarmament conference of 1932, and as such he demanded abolition of submarines, characterizing them as "sea assassins." Swanson, Senate veteran, was a strong supporter of the League of Nations in the Wilson era and has frequently supported moves for international agreements of both economic and military nature.

Legg to Quit Teaching After 50-Year Service To Go to Legislature

PETER L. LEGG

When Peter R. Legg, veteran country schoolmaster, lays aside his books and says good-bye to the boys and girls of the West Rock school next month, he will have completed 50 active years in school work. Retirement from teaching, however, will not subject him to a life of leisure, for at the age of 73 he will go down to Lansing after the holidays to represent Delta county in the next session of the legislature, which it is expected will be one of the most strenuous and important sessions of the state legislature.

Despite his advanced age, Representative-elect Legg says he "feels fit as a fiddle." A caller at the Press office yesterday, he made known the fact that in the last 35 years he has been confined to his home only a total of three days because of illness.

"The coming session of the legislature will be a real busy one," Mr. Legg stated. "There will be a lot of work to do, but I believe that the problems will be solved. I think if we all use just a little common sense down there in Lansing, everything as far as Michigan's government is concerned will come out all right."

Believes in Change

Questioned regarding his attitude on the prohibition question, Mr. Legg declared he believed the will of the majority should rule.

"The people of Michigan showed by their vote on the prohibition referendum that they want a change," he explained. "I have been a teetotaler all my life and I was one of the many American citizens who voted for prohibition, believing that it would eliminate the evils of liquor. But there is no denying that the conditions that have arisen under the eighteenth amendment are not satisfactory and should be remedied. I am opposed to the return of the old saloon, however, and if we are to retrace our steps in this social experiment I hope that we do not go back that far."

Born in Ontario

Delta county's new representative was born in Mapleton, Elgin county, Ontario, Conada. When eight years of age, he was left an orphan and went to live with some neighbors, where he stayed until June 26, 1876. During this time, he received not more than a year's education in the rural school there. Came the day when he borrowed five dollars to buy working clothes and left home to start earning his own living. After laboring hard on different farms during the summer and studying in the winter, he entered the Central school at St. Thomas, Ontario, in the fall of 1878, and later was given a diploma entitling him to enter any high school in the province.

He attended the St. Thomas Collegiate Institute until June, 1882, when he went to Eaton county, lower Michigan. He worked at common labor until October, and then began teaching in the Ames district school in Chester township, where, he says, he received "the handsome salary of $20 per month and the privilege of boarding around."

The following summer he attended Olivet college, and the following school year he spent at teaching in Vermontville township. The next year he took charge of the school at Mismarck, in Sunfield township, where he remained for two years.

Later, he returned to Olivet, where he attended college and taught part time in the Olivet public schools. He graduated from the normal department of the college in June, 1887.

Came to U. P. in 1887

Mr. Legg came to the upper peninsula in September, 1887, taking a school at Fayette, where the Jackson Iron company's furnace was then operating full blast. Later, he taught at Garden and Kipling.

At the Republican county convention in March, 1899, he was nominated as county commissioner of schools, an office he held until June 30, 1915. He was defeated by the present commissioner, C. U. Woolpert, and then returned to teaching, holding positions at various times in Brampton and Maple Ridge townships.

He was a candidate for the Republican nomination for representative two years ago, but was defeated by the incumbent, Helmer Bruce of Bark River. This year, Mr. Legg cast his lot with the Democrats, and defeated William Finnegan, retired Escanaba railroad engineer, for the Democratic nomination in the September primary, and then won over Bruce in the November election.

THEATRES

With the coming of "Tess of the Storm Country" to the Delft theatre today, the army of Gaynor-Farrell fans will see their favorites in what is said to be the most exciting and dramatic offering they have yet made and a picture very different from any of their previous vehicles.

The story deals with the hectic adventures of a sea captain's daughter who comes to live ashore for the first time in her life.

With its opening sequences aboard the captain's schooner and the picturesque settings of the shore scenes, the production adds a scenic realism to its swift-moving story. Miss Gaynor's work as the fiery and independent fisher-girl and Farrell's performance as the carefree youngster who encounters love for the first time, are reported to rank among the stars' finest portrayals.

Dudley Digges, Miss Gaynor's uncle in "The First Year," enacts the role of her nautical father in "Tess." Claude Gillingwater, June Clyde and Edward Pawley have the other principal parts, with George Meeker, Matty Kemp and DeWitt Jennings also prominent in the cast.

The direction is by Alfred Santell, who made Miss Gaynor's earlier "Daddy Long Legs" and Farrell's "Body and Soul." The film was adapted from the novel by Grace Miller White and the dramatization by Rupert Hughes. S. N. Behrman and Sonya Levien wrote the screen play.

CURTIS NEWS

Curtis, Mich.—Mrs. John Gowan, who has been ill with a very severe cold for some time, is recovering.

Mrs. Harry Strom spent several days last week at the Humphrey hunting camp several miles west of Curtis.

Win Humphrey, Mr. and Mrs. Delmer Humphrey and Henry Waterbury returned from their hunting camp this week, bringing two deer with them.

R. Taylor, C. Grant and Fred Hoig went on a camping trip in order to deer hunt, hooking Mr. Taylor's house car onto the auto so as to have a comfortable place in which to stay. They returned to their camp one day and found the house car burned. They have returned to Curtis.

Leroy Painter, who was cooking at a hunting camp for a bunch of hunters, returned home last Saturday.

Jas. Painter, who was cooking for a bunch of hunters from Saline, Michigan, returned home Monday. The seven hunters went home with five deer. Dolph Painter guided them.

The Calico Club resumed their Wednesday meetings in October this fall, a few weeks later than usual. Up to the present time seven quilts have been quilted and two more are on the frames which will probably be completed at the next meeting. The record for last year was 30 quilts quilted and five tied. Wood has been bought and stored for the winter, paid for mostly from the penny fees taken at each meeting. They are expecting a quota of Red Cross material which they will help make up for the needy.

Escanaba Concern Makes New Product

The Universal Cinder Products company will soon start the manufacture of a new product, known as cinder-chrome, and will distribute it throughout the upper Michigan and northern Wisconsin territory, Peter I. Sullivan, general manager, announced yesterday.

The new product can be used for the same purposes as glazed brick or tile, such as for store fronts, floors, table tops and wainscoating. New equipment has been installed for the manufacture of the cinder-chrome.

Shipping Season Nearing The End

Now that the 1932 shipping season is virtually over, aids to navigation are being removed by the government crews, and Saturday the Hyacinth of the U. S. service was in port at Escanaba, bringing in buoys which have been taken up in this section of Lake Michigan.

The lightship 11-Foot, which has been stationed at 11-Foot shoal, near the entrance to the bay, for the last seven months, is due to return to the home port at Escanaba for the winter in a few days. Captain Dan Garrett, formerly of Manistique, is the master of the 11-Foot, which has a crew of six.

Drive the chills away with WINTERKING

I SURE steer clear of any place where I see a load of this new Winterking Coal going in . . . I found out from experience that it is the hottest stuff this side of Hades.

You'd think anything that hot would burn itself up in a hurry. On the contrary, this Winterking seems to burn for ages and what an intense heat it throws off hour after hour!

From what I hear it doesn't require any special firing instructions and takes very little attention because it lasts so long and leaves so little ashes.

If you want to be nice and warm—try a ton.

WATER-FOWL,
THROUGH MUSCULAR ACTION, CAN BRING THE FILAMENTS OF THEIR FEATHERS TOGETHER SO TIGHTLY THAT WATER IS UNABLE TO PENETRATE THEM. IT IS NOT THE OIL ON THE FEATHERS THAT MAKES THEM WATERPROOF.
IF WE STOOD AT EITHER OF THE EARTH'S POLES WE WOULD SEE NO RISING OR SETTING OF THE STARS! THEY WOULD TRAVEL AROUND THE SKY IN HORIZONTAL CIRCLES.

LIVE WATER-FOWL can paddle about in the water all day without getting wet, but the minute a dead bird is placed in water the feathers at once become soaked and sodden. Without the muscular control of the living bird, the feathers are useless for turning water.

IN OUR LATITUDE there are stars which never set. Those around the polar star are always visible to us, but if we traveled southward they would be visible only a part of the time, and eventually we would not be able to see the Big Dipper at all.

Cooking School Opening Here On Wednesday

The cooking school sponsored by the E. O. Anderson company will open Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Anderson building. Miss Dorothy Cooley of General Foods arrived in the city yesterday and has planned for those who attend an interesting and varied program.

Miss Cooley has had wide experience in presenting the subject of food to homemakers and sees their problems from a practical point of view. Her program Wednesday is called "A Meal in Forty Minutes" and should be particularly interesting to busy women who do not have a great deal of time to spend in the kitchen.

On Thursday, "1932 Cakes and Pies" will be presented with the fundamentals of good cake making given special emphasis. Miss Cooley will complete her program on Friday with "A Salad a Day."

All Escanaba housewives are invited to attend this school. Attractive recipe booklets with some very worth while guest prizes will be distributed.

At Bethany Church
Otto Leonardson, stewardship secretary of the Augustana Synod, and George Skogberg, treasurer of the Superior Conference, will be in attendance at the morning service of the Bethany Lutheran church today. Both will give a brief message relative to their respective fields of service.
Mr. Leonardson resides in Minneapolis and Mr. Skogberg in Marinette.

Mrs. Manning at State Convention

Mrs. John Manning, Regent of the Daughters of Isabella, Trinity Circle, Number 362, is in Detroit, in attendance at the Michigan State convention of the Isabellas, which is being held at the Hotel Statler. The convention sessions, opening Saturday, are continuing through today. Mrs. Manning, in addition to being Regent of the Trinity Circle, is state monitor.

WILL CONDUCT SCHOOL

Miss Dorothy Cooley who will be in charge of the cooking school at the E. O. Anderson building Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Canned Foods Part of Meals On Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving dinners distributed by the Escanaba city welfare department during the holiday period included a special treat in the form of canned vegetables, fruits and jellies, which were put up during the fall by the women of the various churches of the city, working in cooperation in the community welfare project.

Over 800 jars of the eatables were distributed during the holiday with staples from the city store for Thanksgiving dinners.

The supply of preserved foodstuffs, which is on hand at the store room, will be distributed as it is needed during the winter months.

Green Frock Has Draped Neckline

Washington (AP)—Mrs. Sol Bloom is wearing an evening dress of green crepe made on modish lines with a draped neckline and a slight train.

Mrs. Roosevelt, New First Lady, Homemaker First

Albany, N. Y. (AP)—Activities of the nation's new first lady catalog a wide range of affairs.

Merely to sum up the things that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has done is to suggest that the responsibilities lying before the wife of the president-elect will be met by one who has a record for achievement in a field apart from that of her husband.

Furniture manufacturer, school teacher, a social welfare worker, writer, lecturer, political campaigner, magazine editor—she has been all of these while presiding over the Roosevelt home at Hyde Park and the executive mansion at Albany during her husband's two terms as governor.

But, important as such things were to a woman eager and happy in achievement, they did not supplant her family. The rearing of five children and the fight she helped her husband wage to overcome the efforts of infantile paralysis have come first.

It was with the idea of creating an industry for local people that she started her furniture factory on the Roosevelt estate, feeling that capital should be put to work wherever possible to create jobs.

Up to now she has taught three days a week at the Todhunter School for Girls in New York, where she is part owner and assistant principal. She took up this work to express actively her ideas in educational theory, in English and in history.

When only 18, shortly after her social debut and at a time when women were not doing such things on so large a scale as now, she became interested in welfare work and devoted much time to the Rivington Street settlement house.

Her interest in child psychology led her to assume the editorship of a magazine devoted to children.

She has written numerous articles, has lectured on many topics, and during the recent gubernatorial campaign in New York made two speeches for Col. Herbert H. Lehman—not mentioning, incidentally, her husband in either of them.

Friends say she will curtail many of her outside activities as the nation's first lady, but will continue to edit the magazine with the assistance of her daughter, Mrs. Curtis Dall.

But they do not believe that Mrs. Roosevelt, having so long been active in various fields, will lose contact with them even though she is busy with White House affairs. On the contrary, they say that her presence in Washington will lend a new enthusiasm and a fresh interest to women's activities over the nation.

Melita Hutzel Will Speak at Barr Meeting

A talk by Miss Melita Hutzel, state chairman of mental hygiene, will feature the regular meeting of the Barr school Parent Teacher association which will be held Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the school auditorium.

Miss Hutzel who is visiting Escanaba in connection with her state work, will discuss a number of problems in which parents and teachers are interested and it is expected that her talk will attract a large attendance.

Miss Hutzel is well known in Escanaba through frequent visits here and she will be remembered for her efficient work in promotion of the toxin anti-toxin program in the community.

In commenting on the necessity of her work, Dr. Catherine B. Green, professor of educational psychology of the University of Michigan, has said:

"Our children and ourselves are affected by our occupation and our neighbors in the community. From birth to death, each is a member of the community and needs to plan for community membership as carefully as for home membership.

"To understand what membership in the community means to family needs let us realize that parents must inspect the source from which they draw what they use at home. Community safeguards for water, milk, traffic protection, fire prevention, education and play—all have an immediate effect on the home. These must be kept up to the best possible efficiency to keep the child in the home safe.

"The child within the home needs help in understanding diversity of standards, the adults in the community need education which they can use to understand their responsibilities and the children in the community need the best of modern education to help them in their present and future lives."

The program of the meeting will also include a book review by Miss Agnes M. Leiper's second graders, two selections by pupils of R. P. Bowers, and a vocal solo by Miss Ruth Sundwick.

Members of the unit are urged to be present and are requested to invite guests interested in hearing Miss Hutzel to attend the meeting.

Professor Finds Superstitions in State Total 4,000

Ann Arbor, Mich. (AP)—Superstition is not dead by any means, Dr. Eugene S. McCartney, of the University of Michigan Graduate school, reports.

Dr. McCartney catalogued 4,000 separate superstitions found in Kentucky, and reports that as many might be found in almost any other state.

The football captain who goes into a game with a rabbit's foot is copying the Romans who had a similar superstition, the professor finds. The Greeks believed it was bad luck to step over a broom, and the Romans were superstitious of spilt salt.

A daughter was born on Thursday, Thanksgiving Day, at the Maternity hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Juel DeGrande, 1725 First avenue south. Mother and baby are both doing nicely.

HAVE 'EM LONG ENOUGH

If your family complains that your beds aren't comfortable there is a chance that your sheets are at fault. Sheets should be long enough to allow plenty of room for folding under the mattress. Sheets should be 108 inches long for the average length bed. Every bed is entitled to at least six sheets, two will always be in the laundry, and two will be in the linen closet. Change the sheets at least twice a week.

Elks Memorial Service Will be Held December 4

The spirit of reverence and impressive beauty which made the service of last year unforgetable to every person present for it, will again be given expression Sunday, December 4, in the annual Elks Memorial service, which will be held by Escanaba Lodge, Number 354, B. P. E., in tribute to its departed brothers.

The service, which is held by Elks lodges everywhere on the first Sunday of December, will again be held in the William Oliver Memorial auditorium, Escanaba Junior high school in order that sufficient seating capacity may be provided for the many members of the lodge, their families, the families and friends of those who have gone on, and others who will wish to be present for the service. It will begin promptly at 3 o'clock.

The beautiful ritual honoring the departed members, will be conducted by officers of the lodge and the Memorial oration will be prominent Escanaban, delivered by Albert J. Young.

The service music will include two sacred numbers by the Escanaba Woman's Chorus of twenty-one voices, directed by Miss Ruth Sundwick; selections by the Kafas string ensemble, selections by the Elks quartet, and numbers by Miss Ruth Sundwick, who is soloist.

The service this year is again in charge of M. J. Lang, who arranged the beautiful memorial of the past year. Its detailed program will be announced later.

our first conference," Linda answered grimly.

"That's the idea."

"I'll go into the kitchen," she said. "I have to break the news to Rosie and Annie that the house party is still on their hands. I'll go up the back stairs and meet you in our room in five minutes."

"Ye-es," said Tom, stopping with his hand on the latch of the door. "But Binks—be careful!"

"What could possibly happen in five minutes—?" She stopped. What had happened in five minutes, early that still, hot morning? Not trusting herself to speak, she nodded and hurried over the grass toward the service entrance.

She presumed she gave intelligent directions, for after their first expression of concern neither Rosie nor Annie seemed to regard her with any degree of alarm. But until she got upstairs again — safely and without meeting anyone—she moved with abstracted haste, her mind concentrated on that fierce desire to see Tom again, alone, to begin with him their secret, urgent, dangerous hunt for her cousin's murderer, still within her house.

AT her husband's step in the hall Linda flung open the door eagerly and he was hardly inside and the door closed before she spoke.

"Tom—do any of them seem alarmed by this business about Dr. Boyle? Did you get anything from the way they took it?"

"No. Each one took it differently but all took it well. I blamed poor old Parsons pretty heavily and emphasized the fact that it was only a formality. At first Statlander was distinctly disagreeable but that could be laid to his dislike of having his plans upset twice in rapid succession. He was all ready to leave and his room was neat as a pin. If there was any evidence there against him it's gone now. I reminded him we still had a lot of Valeska business to discuss and that appeared to reconcile him. Either he really does want to finish what we're supposed to clean up this week-end or he decided he'd better seem to want to. Marvin—I'm afraid I was pretty short with Marvin. Just told him the facts and let it go at that."

"How did he act?"

"Just the same. He'd be a good one to conceal a guilty secret because he always acts as if he had one, and so gradually you get used to it. When I knocked he opened the door and blocked it completely. I couldn't see into the room, and somehow I had the idea he didn't want me to. It might have been just my imagination. I—well, it wasn't any too easy for me to be civil and I can't honestly say I noticed much about him. He was stiff and had that air of holding something back, as I remember. In other words, quite himself. Then I went next door to DeVos. He was also quite himself, which meant that he was very pleasant and courteous, assured me he quite understood and that anything that made it easier for us was agreeable to him. He did ask about going off the grounds and I found he had a date with Fleur Stoner early this afternoon—"

"You might know she'd have her hooks in him!"

"And he'd thought he might simply check his bag at the station and go up to town later. He'd noticed the inn across the road there and had meant to stop there for lunch without bothering us."

"Thoughtful! And Mr. Shaughnessey we know about—so that's that! And now we must think of each one separately, Tom—what he's said and done, ever since he arrived . We'll start—"

"We'll start with Pratt," said Tom grimly. "After all, he was there and that seems fairly important."

"It is indeed," agreed Linda. "Don't think I entirely bar him out. But remember, too, his room is nearest Cousin Amos and it's perfectly possible he heard me fall. And anyone who really tried to strangle me wouldn't have waited while you swam in, ran across the lawn and came upstairs."

"He might stay from bravado, just because no one would think he would. Anyhow, we have that on him definitely and we have nothing on any other."

"Oh, yes, we have. On one other man."

CHAPTER XVIII

TOM showed his surprise. "What do you mean?" he asked.

"Don't you remember what you told me about Mr. Shaughnessay!" Linda was deadly in earnest now. "Tom, why should he be up then, much less prowling around? An hour before you'd helped him up the stairs—drunk!"

"Well, not exactly drunk, Binks."

"Near enough! Did you see him start to undress?"

"No. I didn't need to stay. I was tired myself and he was able to navigate all right. Gosh, it seems a month ago instead of this very morning!"

"I was thinking—he'd been drinking, Tom, and he was quarrelsome, even the little I could see. Of course they all had trouble with Cousin Amos but Mr. Shaughnessey had been snubbed outrageously and he's proud as Lucifer. No matter how he hid it he'd never forgive the way Cousin Amos talked to him that night at dinner. He probably could have gotten into the house somehow."

Tom's frown of concentration stopped her. "You know, Linda, I can't remember locking that door last night."

"The front door when we came in? I didn't see—oh, of course, you came up later after you took him over."

"Yes. I was hot and tired and pretty well jangled as to nerves by our delightful guests. Wanted to get my clothes off and get to bed—"

"You don't usually forget."

"I may not have. Just can't remember doing it. One of the ordinary bits of routine that simply doesn't register either way."

"You said you didn't see him to bed."

"You mean he could have followed me?"

"No, not exactly. But I was thinking that he might have watched you from the window. He could have noticed that—if you'd just hurried in and left the door open."

TOM made a gesture of weariness and distaste.

"Well, granting he got into the house and threw the old man over the balcony, how could he choke you and then show up on the terrace as I came up?"

"He could—that's just what I was figuring." Her voice was excited, her eyes bright. "Look, Tom, you were climbing on the raft—you saw me wave and a man behind me—and you dove. While you were in the air or under water he could step over me, run across the little balcony and into the nursery. It's empty and the nursery casement opens at a touch. By the time you were swimming in—"

"I see what you mean. You think Pratt came across the hall afterwards. But then, Binks, wouldn't Shaughnessey have been caught in the nursery?"

"Not at all. It's right opposite the door to the service stairs. He could slip across the hall, down them, through the pantry and kitchen—the girls weren't stirring then—out the side door and come around on the front lawn and meet you, cool as a cucumber—"

"And surprised to see me there! Yes, you're right—in point of time anyhow, he certainly could." Tom whistled softly. "But, Binks—why not simply go back to the garage?"

Her face fell, then lightened. "Bravado, as you said of Marvin. And the Irish do love to show off."

"You certainly do dislike that man, don't you, Binks?"

"I don't like any of them any too well. And now about the other two?"

"Yes—either of them—"

"You said they both came into the room? Did you notice where they came from?"

"Where—oh, I see! If the one who did it escaped by way of the nursery he'd come from that end of the hall. But Statlander is down at this end already. That would be a give-away only if it were DeVos."

"I know. I just thought you might have noticed the direction from which they each came."

"Never thought of it. Too busy with you—and besides, my back was to the door. They just appeared after I reached the room but before we brought you here."

FOR the last moment or two he had spoken vaguely, as if his thoughts were elsewhere. Now he broke the short silence hesitatingly.

"Linda—I can't exactly place it—but there's something—"

"Something you saw?"

"Yes, from the float. There was something about that man—"

"When you saw him standing behind me?"

"It was only a second, you know. But I have a queer hazy feeling there was something not quite right about his looks. Just the effect as he stood there."

"Oh, Tom, try to think!"

"I am trying but it doesn't come."

She waited hopefully. He shook his head. "Sorry! Can't get it."

"It'll come when you least expect it," said Linda comfortingly, little guessing how long deferred how very nearly too long—that sudden memory would be. "We can settle that later. Now we must fix our stories so that they agree on the accident and what happened after. We must know exactly what we're going to say—about every single point."

"Linda, have you thought of this? Cousin Amos spoke to you. The man was overhead and might have heard. In that case he'd see through the whole yarn. We'd give ourselves away completely."

She pondered this.

"I don't think there was a chance of that. Cousin Amos barely whispered. It was all I could do to hear, with my ear right down to his mouth. I did gasp his name—that gave away that I was there but anyone two feet away wouldn't have known he spoke. No, I think that's all right. I can bluff that through. Now, how does this sound for my story?

"I had come down from this room, hurrying after you, and the body hit the terrace just as I came out. I dashed forward and called him but he was dead—"

"In that case, you should have stayed there till help came."

"I couldn't be sure he was dead. He might have been unconscious. And at that time in the morning help doesn't just come—you have to get get it. I rushed in to—to telephone—"

"The telephone's downstairs in the hall. You would have stopped there."

"Yes. Well, my first aid supplies are up here . I dashed up for—for spirits of ammonia and bandages and anything I could lay my hands on."

"Then how did you get into his room?"

* * *

SHE thought that over. "Force of habit. We used to have it before we moved in here and I was so rattled that I went there without thinking."

"That's not very strong, Binks."

"Hysterical women do things lots queerer than that. Well, to go back, I dashed in—saw the balcony rail torn away and dropped in a dead faint."

"No mention of the thing around your neck?"

"No. But that's dangerous, too. I couldn't help feeling that."

"There's another weak spot. Why not say you felt as if you were choking—"

"Yes—and I'll describe it as if I imagined something went around my neck."

Their eyes met.

"We're taking an awful chance, Binks."

"Why, Tom? You said yourself that a man like that was—was quite all right after he had the—the explosion. And if none of them has the sense of being suspected or watched, the one that did it won't become irritated all over again."

"Ye-es. But, Binks, promise me this. Don't stir from the place alone with one. Don't fall for any suggestion to go off in the boat, or through the trees to the club, or anywhere out of reach—instant reach. On the lawn or in the house, you're in calling distance of a lot of people but if you go any further be sure at least two of them are with you—then you know it can't be both!"

"I see. You think there's still danger."

"I know it. Want to back out, Binks? It isn't too late."

She shook her head.

"We're in for it, and we can do it. You're to talk business with Mr. Statlander after luncheon? Then he's your first victim. If Mr. DeVos is going right over to the Stoners either Marvin or the Irishman will be mine. We'll have tea on the lawn at 4:30 and can then probably shift partners, talk to them separately again, and you and I can meet and compare notes while we dress for dinner. They all expect to have dinner here, don't they?"

"Yes. My guess is that Boyle will arrive between 6 and 7 and we don't know how long he'll delay matters. Then, if you want, you can suggest they carry out the former plans for the evening."

"We'll do that when the time comes. It all depends now on what happens this afternoon. Let's go down, Tom. The time is short enough at best and we can't begin our work too soon!"

School Board Reduces Insurance Cost $30,000

The Manistique board of education lopped off nearly $30,000 in insurance costs on buildings and equipment at the regular monthly meeting on Friday evening for the purpose of reducing operating costs to a minimum. The chief slashes were made in the insurance costs of the Riverside and Lakeside buildings.

Public school children will be given a few additional days for Christmas vacation according to a decision made by the board which will close the schools for two weeks and a day over the holiday season. Schools will close on Friday, December 16, and will reopen again on Tuesday, January 3.

The following tables show where the principal insurance reductions were made:

Building Insurance

School	Am't. Carried	Reduction	Present Am't.
Manual Training, Old Gymn	$63,000	$13,000	$50,000
Riverside	16,000	5,000	11,000
Lakeside	33,900	10,900	23,000
Lincoln	50,000	1,500	48,500

Furniture and Equipment Insurance

School	Am't. Carried	Reduction	Present Am't.
Manual Training, Old Gymn	$ 6,000	$ 3,000	$ 3,000
Riverside	1,500	900	600
Lakeside	2,000	1,500	500
Lincoln	3,000	1,500	1,500

All of the above reductions are based on present day costs of replacement.

The following table on school costs for the past eleven years shows the lowest number of teachers per pupil for this year. Expenditures are cut more this year than at any other time during this period and the tax levy is also lower than at any other time. Despite the large cut made in the assessed valuation, the tax rate is exceedingly low in comparison.

SCHOOL COSTS

Year	Average Membership	Number Teachers	Total Expenditures	Tax Levy	Assessed Valuation	Tax Rate

"I don't know," retorted the waiter, "I only laid the table."—Tit-Bits.

Will Begin Soon On 16-Mile Road Project On U. S. 2

Work on the 16-mile stretch of road from Marblehead corner east to the junction of M-77, US-2, will be commenced in the near future according to a communication received yesterday morning by John E. McCarthy, county engineer, from James A. Sinke, executive officer of the State Unemployment commission, advising him to prepare his unemployment list for labor on the project.

The $40,000 contract for widening the grade and putting in drainage structures was awarded to the Meade & Anderson Construction company of Marquette last Monday. The grade will be widened to 36 feet and the roadbed from 18 to 20 feet.

Find Hairless Buck Hung Up In Thicket

A good-sized buck, entirely without hair, was found this week hung up in a thicket in the Steuben region by a party of local hunters. No evidence of any of the hair having been scraped off was found and it is believed that the buck was diseased. Local conservation officers were notified and are investigating the strange case.

Robber Is Driven Away By Police Dog

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 2.—"Never mind the food. It's money I want," said the man who had begged his way into the home of Mrs. Jessie Hemp, where Corwin Ecks is caretaker. "All right, I'll give you more than you expect," said Ecks, as he flung open the pantry door. "Sic 'em, said Ecks, and Mrs. Hemp's police dog leaped from the pantry and attacked the man. Fearing the man might be killed, Ecks called the dog off while the culprit fled with a torn and bleeding wrist.

Negro Runs Amuck, Leaves Plain Trail

Miami, Fla., Nov. 2.—Police had very little trouble following the trail of wreckage left by Governor Banks, Negro truck driver. Banks was intoxicated, and after a collision with a street car, he ran amuck. He led the emergency squad a thrilling and tortuous race through the city leaving in his wake a trail well marked with parts from his truck and the wreckage of two automobiles which he smashed.

BAD GUESS

The doctor had forgotten his patient's name, but did not like to admit it. Very tactfully, he inquired: "Let me see—do you spell your name with an 'i' or with an 'o'?"

"My name," said the patient, "is Hill."—The Humorist.

Luce County Will Fills Its Quota In Red Cross Drive

Assurance that Luce county will fill the Red Cross membership quota came with the report that with two whole townships yet to be heard from only a few dollars are now needed. The quota is 200. Secretary of the drive committee, A. Louis Newmark, reports that the sum of $197.36 has already been turned in.

Of this sum McMillan township which includes the village of Newberry, contributed $125.36 and Pentland township where the state hospital is located turned in $72.00. Mrs. Charles Toms is the chairman of the Pentland committee and Mrs. Walter Johnson of the McMillan group. Mr. Newmark wishes to thank all of those who served on his committee and all of those who contributed so generously. The exact report will be turned in by the first of the month.

Another Carload Of Flour Received

Another carload of flour was received several days ago to be distributed by the American Legion post. This is the fourth carload sent by the Red Cross and all has been disposed of except the last carload and requests still coming in every day from destitute families. A woman and her children came in from Sixteen Mile Lake Thanksgiving Day wanting a sack of flour. She was informed that it would be rather difficult for her to find the proper officials to make out papers and supply her needs on account of Thanksgiving Day being a holiday and all places closed. She said that she had not the slightest idea that she had come all the way from Sixteen Mile Lake on a holiday and didn't know anything about Thanksgiving, anyway, but did know that she needed some flour. This year Thanksgiving baskets were not distributed around the same as in former years. It is the intention of the welfare society to distribute Christmas baskets this year, however.

SAY RED CROSS RESPONSE SLOW

Local Unit Makes Second Appeal in Member Drive

Response to the appeal for membership in the local unit of the American Red Cross has been slower than a year ago, according to officials of the Delta County Chapter, but the hope was expressed that when the roll call had been completed that the number of members would be as great or greater than in 1931.

The second letter to be sent out by the organization was mailed yesterday to the group who failed to respond to the first appeal and good returns from this are looked for. The names on the list, according to a member of the official group, are all persons who are without question able and willing to join the Red Cross and aid in its support.

Attention has been called to the demands upon the local unit for relief that cannot be supplied by other welfare organizations and the need for funds with which to carry on the work. It is also brought to the attention of those whose membership is sought that the Red Cross, through the national organization, has lightened the burden of the local relief agencies through the contribution of flour, cloth and clothing.

The appeal from the Red Cross, signed by James T. Jones, chairman and John M. Olson, treasurer reads as follows:

"In return for the supplies received from the American Red Cross, the National Headquarters ask only that the membership be maintained or increased. We wish to turn in a list of members that will show the appreciation of this community for the aid given the needy and unemployed.

"You have been informed that Gladstone has received or has in transit for early delivery:

"Three car loads of flour.

"Four thousand yards of outing flannel and sheeting.

"Stockings, overalls, shirts, etc. for 150 families.

"Only fifty cents of your subscription goes to the National Headquarters, the balance remains for local relief, therefor we ask you to give as liberally as possible.

"One dollar makes you a member of this worthy organization.

"For convenience we have arranged with both banks to receive your subscription, where button and receipt will be given. Or you can mail it to either Jas. T. Jones, chairman, or John M. Olson, treasurer, and receipt and button will be delivered to you. Telephone 154 or 146 and messenger will call on you.

"The Red Cross is serving our needy and unemployed and your help and co-operation will be appreciated."

Chief Warns Of Coasting Danger

Chief of Police Torval Kallerson has called attention to the growing danger to children that is resulting from the practice of hitching sleds to cars and coasting on hills where traffic is heavy. "Children," he said, "apparently have no regard for their own safety and are endangering their own lives and those of motorists. They hook their sleds behind speeding autos, coast on both the North and Buckeye hills and play with their sleds on some of the more busy streets of the city. Police are unable to watch all the streets and the children obey the police orders only so long as the police are in sight."

Continuing, he called attention to the fact that each year it has been necessary to secure the cooperation of the parents in bringing to a halt the dangerous practices. Parents should point out the danger to the children and should insist that they do not play in the streets, he said.

No matter how careful a driver may be, he stated, it would be impossible to avoid an accident if a coasting youth should suddenly slide in front of the car. The roads and streets are a sheet of ice and it is impossible to bring a car to a sudden stop.

In the interest of saving the lives of the children, he said, every parent should do his part to keep the streets free from children with sleds.

First Debate At Iron Mountain

The Gladstone-Iron Mountain debate, the first on the schedule of the local high school, will be held on the evening of Saturday, Dec 3 at Iron Mountain it was announced yesterday by Prin. C. C. Strickland, of the Gladstone schools. The debate was originally scheduled for Dec. 2. Gladstone will uphold the affirmative side of the question; "Resolved: That a state income tax should be adopted by the state of Michigan." This subject is to be used throughout the debating season.

Besides the debate at Iron Mountain, three debates in the preliminary series are scheduled for the Gladstone schools. On Dec. 16, Ishpeming will come here; on Jan. 13 Manistique will be here and on Jan. 27 the local team will go to Negaunee.

The debates in the Michigan High School Debating League are conducted in two series; a preliminary series in which all member schools debate at least four times, and an elimination series which terminates in the State Championship Debate. The schools with the highest percentage of victories in the preliminary debates are entered in the elimination series and awarded the University of Michigan Wall Plaque Trophy, through the cooperation of the Detroit Free Press. This Trophy is in the shape of a shield, the design of which was taken from the well-known University of Michigan shield. Its base is of American walnut, 17 inches in height and 15 inches across the top, and the medallion, superimposed upon the shield, is 9 inches in diameter, three-eighths of an inch thick, and is cast of solid bronze with all lettering artistically embossed.

OBITUARY

JAMES YOUNG

James Young was born at Glasgow, Scotland, on Oct. 22, 1838, and died at Gillette, Wis., on Nov. 20, 1932, having reached the advanced age of more than 94 years. At the time of his death he was making his home with a daughter, to whose home he had moved to spend his declining years.

When he was 5 years of age, with his parents, James Young, came to America, the family settling at Listowell, Ontario. There he spent his youth and on July 8, 1863, he was united in marriage to Emma Forsythe. This union was terminated after 59 years, when Mrs. Young died in 1922.

Three years after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Young came to the United States, settling first at Saginaw City, where they lived for eight years, then to Gillette, where they spent 17 years, then to Shawano for three years, to Gladstone where 23 years were spent and then back to Gillette, where they lived together until he death of Mrs. Young and where Mr. Young spent the remaining years of his life.

Fifty-seven direct descendents of Mr. and Mrs. Young survive to mourn his passing. These include eight children, 33 grandchildren, 15 great-grandchildren and one great great-grandchild.

Funeral services for Mr. Young were held Wednesday at Gillette and burial was made in the Gillette cemetery. Attending the last rites from Gladstone were John Young and Chester Young, sons, Vilas, a grandson, and Mrs. Geo. Young, daughter-in-law. Mr. Geo. Young was unable to attend because of illness.

RULING LESSENS RELIEF DEMAND

City Reports Falling Off In Applicants for Aid

A marked decrease in the number of applicants for aid has resulted from the recent ruling that persons owning and operating automobiles will not be given grocery orders or Red Cross flour and cloth, according to F. R. Buechner, city manager. Under the ruling owners of automobiles who require assistance must turn in their auto license plates when making application for aid. Their failure to do so will cause rejection of the application.

The ruling was made necessary, according to Mr. Buechner, to limit the relief to those who actually needed it. A person who can afford to drive an automobile, it was reasoned, must have some source of income and should not become a dependent of the city.

The ruling was also made for the protection of those who are in actual want. Mr. Buechner pointed out. The city has only a limited amount of funds available for relief work and there is only so much flour and cloth for distribution. If care is not used in the distribution, there may be some persons who are entitled to aid who will not get it.

That a large number of persons who were regular callers at the welfare office have failed to present themselves since the ruling became effective indicates, the manager said, that many of them were not in urgent need but were merely taking advantage of an opportunity to get something for nothing.

The city, he said, does not desire to deprive any person of deserved assistence and is interested only in conserving its resources so that they may be used to prevent suffering.

Forty Are Guests At League Party

Forty Gladstone members of the Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal church were guests Friday night of the Escanaba Epworth league at a party in the church parlors of the First Methodist Episcopal church. The evening was spent at games and refreshments were served.

During the second week in February, it is announced, the Gladstone league will entertain the Escanabans at a similar party to be held here.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Nov. 26 (AP)—Financial markets, on the whole, were much steadier today.

Week-end "evening-up" by professional traders, both in stocks and commodities, doubtless helped smooth the way, and there was little in the day's dealings to suggest that any noticeable change in their direction was taking place.

Stocks went up rather briskly at the opening when shorts covered in anticipation of a good car loadings report. These statistics proved much more favorable than had been anticipated, but just as the market had ignored recent declines, so it paid scant attention to the liberal recovery from election day week. Prices slid off during most of the second hour, leaving net changes at minor fractions, but enough leaders closed higher to give the averages a minute lift. Sales totaled 376,005 shares.

Car loadings jumped 38,758 cars last week against an expected gain of around 30,000 and a drop of 36,000 cars in the post-election period of 1931 when traffic was falling off heavily. Coal traffic accounted for a large percentage of the rise, although all classifications showed some improvement. The decrease from total 1931 Volume was 11.8 percent.

Further information on the October expansion of business becomes available as additional railroad financial statements are published.

The firm tone of wheat was encouraging in view of yesterday's break to new lows by the December and May positions.

Sheep 2,000; today's market nominal; for week ending Friday 36 doubles from feeding stations, 5,900 direct; fat lambs and most yearlings 25 to 50 higher, spots up more; slaughter ewes strong; feeding lambs 15 to 25 higher; better grade fed lambs predominately closing bulks follow: Good to choice native lambs, 5.75 to 6.25.

Hogs 5,000, including 4,000 direct; mostly steady with Friday's average; few light lights weak to 10 lower; good to choice 160 to 280 lbs., 3.40 to 3.45; top 3.50 for 160 lb. averages; other classes scarce; compared with week ago mostly steady; shippers took 500; holdovers 1,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN
Chicago, Nov. 26—Upturns in grain values went hand in hand today with rapid progress of preparations for first of the month evening up of December wheat contracts.

It developed that from 120,000,000 bushels, the amount which on September 10 was awaiting December settlement of wheat accounts, the total had been reduced to 36,339,000 bushels last night, and promised to show a further big decrease by today's transactions, thus diminishing anxiety that the trade would be swamped by huge deliveries December 1. An added bullish influence was increased apprehension regarding the Red Winter Soft States winter wheat crop, now menaced by persistent dearth of moisture throughout a vast area.

Wheat closed unsettled but near the day's top, 1-8 to 3-4 above yesterday's finish, corn ¼ to 5-8 up, oats unchanged to ¼ higher, and provisions varying from 12 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

Corn and oats were swayed mainly by wheat action. Rural offerings of corn proved meager, and eastern demand fairly good.

Provisions lacked support.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—December, 42½ to 5-8, 44 to 44 1-8; May, 46 7-8 to 47, 48 1-8 to ¼; July, 47 7-8 to 48, 49 1-8. Corn—December, 24½ to 24 3-4; May, 28 7-8 to 29, 29¼; July, 30½ to 5-8, 30 3-4.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN
Minneapolis, Nov. 26—Wheat, No. 1 northern, 47 3-8 to 48 3-8; No. 1 red durum, 40; December, 45 3-8; May, 48¼.
Corn, No. 3 yellow, 25 to 24.
Oats, No. 3 white, 14 1-8 to 14 5-8.
Flax, No. 1, 1.01½ to 1.04½.

AS STORM, TIDE RAVAGED COAST

BEING A COUNT DIDN'T COUNT

A noble title meant almost nothing to customs officers when Count Hugues de Borchgrave d'Altena (above), arrived in New York from Belgium and was promptly shunted to Ellis Island as another immigrant. He had to give $500 bond before he could proceed to the home of his uncle, Earl B. Putnam, in Philadelphia.

Hunter Mistaken For Squirrel Shot

Altoona, Pa., Nov —In the future Russell Feaster will be careful how he plays squirrel. While hunting recently, Feaster and his friend, Mr. Smith, became separated. Feaster hid behind a tree thinking he heard an animal in the brush. As he peeked from behind the tree he receivd a charge of 28 shot grains, from Mr. Smith's gun, in the face. Feaster was wearing a grey cap and Smith had mistaken it for a squirrel.

Convicts Can't Loaf In Arizona Prison

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 26—Convicts in the Arizona penitentiary will not grow fat with idleness. They have been set to tilling several hundred acres on which are grown vegetables for the penitentiary and to help the poor. A tannery has also been established to supply work. Tannic acid is secured from the canaigre plant.

Ne wYork, Nov. 26 (AP)—Carloadings of the Santa Fe railroad in the past week were off about 3,000 cars from the previous week, it is estimated, as a result of the Thanksgiving holiday. Indications are that loadings for the week will show about the same percentage decline from a year ago as in the previous week when the drop amounted to about 17 percent.

Curb Mart Prices Ease Toward Close

New York, Nov. 26 (AP)—The curb market pushed forward in the early trading today, but eased off somewhat toward the close, although final prices were irregularly higher.

Trading remained of a desultory character, with the turnover for the two-hour session aggregating only 70,000 shares. That was somewhat above the turnover of the previous Saturday, however.

Electric Bond and Share continued to dominate trading, accounting for a substantial portion of the day's total transfers. The issue advanced ¾ of a point, then fell back to close at 21, unchanged from Friday's final price. American Gas and Electric rose a couple of points, then lost half its gain. New York Steam lost three in a small turnover.

Lake Shore, Canadian gold mining issue, rose to a new high for the year at 29, where it was up a point, but it slipped back to 28 3-8. Renewed speculative interest in the Canadian gold mining issues reflects the recent sag in the Canadian dollar, which increases the premium paid for the yellow metal, in terms of the Canadian currency. Hollinger and Teck Hughes, were all but neglected.

The Hamburg-American Line, through its fiscal agents here, announced today that $500,000 of its first mortgage 6½ percent marine equipment gold bonds, series "V," due December 1, 1932, will be paid on presentation on and after that date.

New York, Nov. 26 (AP)—The quiet strength of highest grade investment issues steadied the bond market today, although secondary loans of all categories were irregular in dull trading.

While the Associated Press-Standard Statistics average for 60 domestic corporate bonds recorded a gain of one-tenth of a point, the first this week, sales totaled only $3,860,000, par value. The rail and utility averages were unchanged while that of the industrials was slightly higher.

American Telephone 4s and debenture 5s of 1960 advanced fractionally to new 1932 highs and the debenture 5s of 1965 equalled this year's top mark. Other loans that equalled their 1932 peaks included Brooklyn Edison 5s of 1952. Consolidated Gas 4½s, Kansas City Power 4½s and New York Edison 4s of 1951.

The only fairly heavy turnover in the domestic groups was in Armour & Co. 5½s where 207 bonds changed hands at an advance of 1 3-8 points. Other industrial loans that gained moderately included Chile Copper 5s, Goodrich 6½s, Goodyear 5s, Hudson Coal 5s, Paramount Publix 5½s, Shell Union Pipe Line 5s, Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s, Standard Oil of New York 4½s and Vanadium Co. 5s.

Pittsburgh Panthers Defeat Stanford by 7 to 0

WARNER'S MEN TURNED BACK

Pitt or Colgate Expected To Get Bid for Rose Bowl Tilt

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 26 (AP)—The Panther of Pittsburgh, a tired, war-worn animal, clawed its way through the Cardinals of Stanford today, climbed to the final height of an undefeated season.

Plainly showing the effects of the barest schedule any eleven in the east tackled this season, the Panther was content to whip "Pop" Warner's invading forces, 7 to 0.

To Pittsburgh or Colgate is certain to go the annual invitation of the west to meet its best, this year Southern California, in the Battle of Roses, and both Colgate and Pittsburgh are in a receptive mood.

The first quarter today was only half a dozen plays old, when the Panthers made the first "break," and shook from it their victory.

Heller Scores

Bob Hogan, a 210-pound quarterback, banged a punt from 15 yards back of his scrimmage line on the 37 yard line, to inches from the Stanford goal, where Ted Dailey, a brisk little end, downed the ball.

Stanley Anderson, Stanford fullback, immediately punted back, but he got the ball out only to his 30 yard line. From that point Pitt launched its scoring drive.

In two plays Mike Sebastian, right halfback, and Izzy Weinstock, a crunching 200-pound fullback, ripped through to the Cardinal 11 yard line. Warren Heller tossed a short pass to Dailey for a first down on the three yard line. Two plays later he dove through tackle for the score and Weinstock place-kicked the goal.

With but one exception, nothing "Pop" Warner's men could do had any effect upon the team Jock Sutherland had coached in the identical system of the Pacific coast master.

Once, in the fourth quarter, the Cardinals burst forth with a single offensive that piled up their lone three first downs. In quick succession, Bill Sim, left halfback running from a kick formation, drifted through tackle for 12 yards from his own 20. Anderson tossed a 13 yard pass to Gordon Campbell, and Ernie Cadell took a pass that was almost a lateral from Campbell, his quarterback, and ran for Stanford's longest gain, 30 yards to Pitt's 25 yard line.

Marquette Wallops Drake Team, 45-0

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 26 (AP)—Marquette University's Golden Avalanche, ineffective as a scoring team most of the season, unleashed a running and passing attack this afternoon which overwhelmed a weak Drake eleven, 45 to 0.

While the Hilltoppers raced up and down the field at will, with a variation of long and short passes, line thrusts and sweeping end runs, they were equally effective in defense. The young men of Drake were unable to advance the ball beyond their own 40-yard line and failed to make a first down. Marquette, on the other hand, made 25.

Michigan Normal Harriers Capture X-Country Race

Ypsilanti, Mich., Nov. 26, (AP)—Harriers from Michigan Normal college won first place in the annual Michigan A. A. U. cross country meet here today with the total score of 16 points. Michigan State college, Central Intercollegiate champion, was second with 39 points.

The Hurons, who won the state collegiate championship two weeks ago placed five runners among the first six to finish lacking only one point of a slam, individual honors were won by Jack Caplis, Huron sophomore, who traveled the rough four and one half miles in 22:22.

Neither Tom Ottey, Spartan star, nor Bill Zepp, Normal freshman, competed in the meet because of injuries.

TOUTED CADET ATTACK FAILS AGAINST IRISH

from kickoff, 74 yards all told, for their second touchdown. This time the second string backfield was unstoppable as Kurth and Krause continued to raise havoc through the Army's first line of defense. Banas and Lukats drove through for consistent gains until the attack finally was bottled up on one side of the field on Army's 37. On fourth down, with five yards to go after a penalty, Banas fooled the Army defense by dropping back to midfield and hurling a 50-yard pass to Devore who made the catch while standing on the goal line.

A beautiful punt by Banas out of bounds on Army's 2 yard mark led to the final score. Fields, back to punt, fumbled a low pass from center and Harris fell on the ball in a wild scramble.

The lineups and summary:

ARMY		NOTRE DAME
Lawlor	LE	Kosky
Lincoln	LT	Krause
Summerville C	LG	Harris
Evans	C	Robinson
Jablonsky	RG	Greeney
Armstrong	RT	Kurth

Tulane Bows to Louisiana State By Score Of 14-0

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 26 (AP)—A first half power and passing offensive carried Louisiana State university to a 14 to 0 victory over a crippled Tulane team before more than 20,000 spectators in today's renewal of the 39-year rivalry between the institutions.

Louisiana State scored on consistent offensives in the first and second periods, with Keller going over center for a needed two feet for the first touchdown and Yates making one foot over right tackle for the second tally. Jack Torrance kicked the extra points.

Line plays by Keller, Yates and Almokary, mixed occasionally with passes from Yates to Almokary and Fleming, gave the Tigers their yardage.

Nobel Peace Prize For 1932 Omitted

Oslo, Norway, Nov. 26 (AP)—The storting (national assembly) Nobel committee decided today that an award of the Nobel peace prize would not be made this year.

The peace prize which was valued at about $40,000 last year when awarded to President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university and Miss Jane Addams, of Hull House, Chicago, was founded by Alfred Bernhard Nobel, inventor of dynamite and guncotton, who died in 1896.

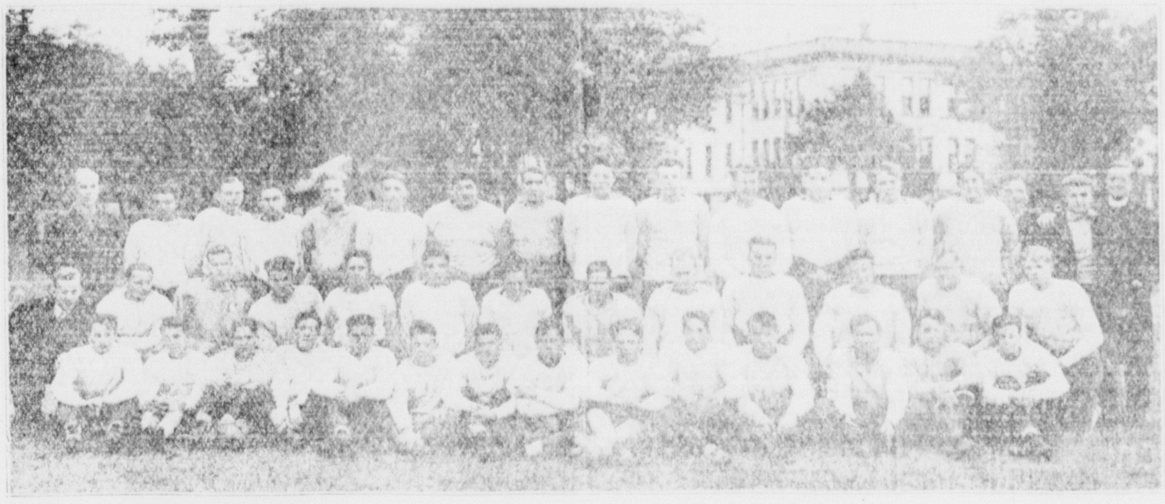
A Norwegian assembly committee, composed of five members, was empowered to award the Nobel prize for peace. Other Nobel prizes are for physics, chemistry, medicine and literature. A Swedish academy committee awards the literature prize and Swedes have control of other awards.

Americans who have won peace awards are Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, Elihu Root, Charles G. Dawes and Frank B. Kellogg. The prize was not awarded in 1914, 1915, 1916, 1918, 1923, 1924 and 1928.

CRUSTY INTRUDER

If Creed doesn't give the armadillo to the zoo his wife will probably receive a sewing basket for Christmas.

Jordan College Squad



Jordan college of Menominee Thanksgiving closed its football schedule, losing to Notre Dame "B" squad, after having been undefeated up to that time. Marquette frosh, however, held the Jordan squad to a scoreless tie. Among the stellar athletes of the Jordan football squad were included: Snyder, Rubins, Scheriff and Wilson of Escanaba.

Michigan Cagers Open December 5 Against Western

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 26 (AP)—The University of Michigan basketball team will open its 1932-33 campaign entertaining Western State Teachers Monday evening, December 5. The annual rules meeting at which high school coaches and officials will be guests of the athletic association here will be held the following Saturday December 10, morning and afternoon before the annual game with Michigan State college quintet.

Five veteran regulars are expected to make strong bids for the Michigan team this year. They are Captain DeForest Eveland and Willard Petrie, forwards; Ray Altenhof and Ivy Williamson, guards, and Ed Garner, center. Garner, who has grown an inch since a year ago, now stands six feet six inches and appears to be a much improved player. Williamson was regarded as one of the outstanding guards of the Western conference last year but will not be out for basketball until after Christmas.

Other football players on the basketball squad are Ted Petoskey, Francis Wistert and Russ Oliver. Leading candidates working out under Coach Franklin Cappon include Allen, Plummer, Black and Teitelbaum.

Presidents Defeat West Virginia, 13-0

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 26 (AP)—In bitter cold weather Washington and Jefferson college defeated West Virginia university this afternoon 13-0 in the 31st annual renewal of an ancient gridiron feud. A crowd of 7,500 saw the game.

The Mountaineers, generally favorite, were never in the running, and the Presidents constantly drove toward the West Virginia goal line. They were unable to score, however, until the final period.

Holy Cross Stopped By Boston College

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 26 (AP)—The Holy Cross football team that started the season with the brightest prospects in its history reached its drab climax today by holding their supposedly inferior Boston college rivals to a scoreless tie without making a first down and gaining but 15 yards rushing the ball.

Starting with the advantage in almost every position, the purple clad crusaders were out-played and out-fought during the entire sixty minutes. Only the fine punting of Joe Ambrose saved them from two or more Boston touchdowns.

At least a dozen times that hard working right end dropped back to boot his team out of the tight spots. The Boston attack, which had faltered against every other major opponent, clicked for seven first downs and a total gain of 99 yards.

M. H. S. GRIDDERS HAVE FINE YEAR

Resume of Season Shows Manistique Outscored Foes, 96-46

Manistique, Mich., Nov. 26 (Special)—Reviewing the Manistique high school grid season the record of the Green and White, five wins, a tie, and two losses, is the most impressive made by the Schoolcrafters in several years. Starting out inauspiciously with a 12-0 beating at the hands of Kingsford, a game which local fans did not regard as an upset as the locals were not regarded as an aggregation which would do much in upper peninsula football circles this year, Coach Wassberg's men went through the season with only one more defeat. The setback took place at the Soo on a cold, wet, and slimy field under conditions unsuited to football. Despite the fact that the game should never have been played under those adverse weather conditions, the Manistique eleven held the Cranemen to a 6-2 score, one of the closest games played by the undefeated Soo team this year.

The 1932 eleven was the first team put on the field by Manistique's new coach, Oscar Wassberg. Calling his candidates for a few practice sessions last spring, Wassberg found that he had to work with an extremely light team. Accordingly he planned on forming a team with speed and deception and began drilling his men on the execution of shift plays, a form of attack new to Manistique teams.

Possessing no exceptionally fast man, with the exception of Ekdahl, Wassberg had to develop a tricky overhead game and it was this method of attack which resulted in many of the wins of the green and white team. With Captain Ekdahl throwing the leather with deadly accuracy into the arms of the rangy ends, Hupfer and Peasley, Manistique won the Gladstone, Escanaba and tied the St. Joe contest.

Ekdahl Big Star

Perhaps the greatest factor in the success of the 1932 Manistique team was the inspired leadership of Captain Harvey Ekdahl, playing his fourth and final year as a regular. The Manistique captain was elected to posts on the all upper peninsula eleven for the past two years and two years ago was the only upper peninsula gridder on an all state selection. This year he should not only place on the upper peninsula all star team, but also merits serious consideration as a member of the first all state team.

As a triple threat man, Ekdahl this year was great in all three departments. His punting was long and accurate, he demonstrated that he is a fine open field runner and plunger by reeling off several long runs without the aid of a great deal of interference and in the Newberry game crashed through the line twice for the only touchdowns of the contest. His bullet-like passes resulted in no less than seven touchdowns during the season.

On defense, however, Ekdahl was perhaps even more brilliant. Backing up the line, the Manistique captain, according to estimates, made approximately 75 per cent of the tackles. His diagnosis of opponents' plays was almost uncanny and his tackling hard and deadly.

Individual scoring shows Ekdahl topping the list with a total of 34 points including four touchdowns and ten points after touchdown. He was also instrumental in the scoring of nearly every other touchdown scored by the Green and White team. Harold Hupfer snagged five passes which were good for touchdowns, while Peasley ranks third in scoring with three touchdowns, two of which were the result of intercepted passes. Captain-elect Rubick counted twice, both times in the Newberry game on off-tackle runs.

Despite the lack of avoirdupois in the line, the forward wall stood the test on defense. Only once during the season did opponents score more than one touchdown per game and that was in the season's opener against Kingsford. Outstanding line play was turned in by Harry Dewey, husky center who showed great improvement in his play over the year previous, and by Stanley Norton, Pete Berger, Houghton, and Deloria.

Graduation took a heavy toll of grid stars this year with next year's prospects looking a bit glum as they always do at this time of the year. Varsity members who hung up their prep school moleskins this year are Capt. Harvey Ekdahl, Multhaupt, Dewey, Norton, Hupfer, Schultz, Peasley, McIntosh, and Rogers.

Wrestling Team At Michigan Expected To Be One Of Best

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 26, (AP)—Coach Clifford Keen is frankly optimistic about prospects of the University of Michigan wrestling team this year and is planning the most ambitious schedule undertaken since the mat game became a varsity sport here.

Big Ten meets have not yet been arranged but probably will include contests with Indiana's national champions and other strong teams. Penn State and Navy, two of the best teams in the east, will be met on a road trip February 10 and 11 and another non-conference match will be with Michigan State college grapplers who defeated the Wolverines last year. Navy has lost one meet in four years, but Keen hopes to take them.

Coach Keen has six letter men and several good candidates for other weights. His material will be tested in the all campus tournament December 13, 14 and 15 in which 75 to 80 entrants are expected. Veterans from last year's team are: Jim Landrum, 118 pounds; Joe Oakley, 126; Captain Blair Thomas, 135, who lost only one match last year, to Eddie Belshaw of Indiana, national champion; Bob Helliwell, 145, and Art Mosier, 155. Ed Wilson is the outstanding prospect at 165 pounds.

Candidates for the 175-pound and unlimited classes include John Kowalik and Willard Hildebrand of the football squad, Alex Odevseff and John Spoden. Hildebrand was all-campus champion as a freshman in 1931. All students excepting wrestling letter men are eligible for the tournament.

Georgia and Tech Play Scoreless Tie

Atlanta, Nov. 26 (AP)—Georgia Tech and the University of Georgia battled to a scoreless tie on a mud-soaked field here today in a savagely fought twenty-eighth renewal of their long rivalry.

The slippery condition of the field and the ball forced both teams to stick largely to straight football, kick often and wait for a break. But when these few breaks came neither team could take advantage of them.

Each team advanced within the other's 20 yard stripe once but their offensives were stalled there by the fierce tackling of surging forwards.

More than 25,000 shivered under oil coats and umbrellas as cold intermittent rain added to the already dreary weather. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the president-elect, and her daughter, Mrs. Curtis Dall, and a large party of friends watched the contest as guests of U. S. Senator John S. Cohen of Georgia. Governor Roosevelt remained at Warm Springs for a conference.

Spartan Quintet Is Seeking Games

Rock, Mich.—The Rock Spartans, an independent amateur basketball team, was organized here this week and announced that they desire to schedule games with any amateur or semi-pro aggregation in the upper peninsula.

The Spartans, in past years, have been one of the strongest independent teams in this territory, and should be stronger this year with the addition of several stars. The team is composed entirely of players who won letters in Little-Giant competition in years gone by. Among those listed are: Stephen Rabideau and Urban Trombly of the University of North Dakota; Gilbert Larson, of North Central College, and Elmer Jokela, Aelred Trombly, Matt Vittala, Leslie Larson and Jay Huff, all former Rock high school stars.

Any teams wishing to schedule games with the Spartans are asked to communicate either with Jay Huff, care of Postmaster, or Leslie Larson, care of Larson Bros at Rock.

COLLEGE STAFF CHANGE RAPPED

Opponents Claim Political Pressure Was Cause of Action

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 26 (AP)—The administration of Michigan State college today turned to the problem of replacing two department heads as widespread criticism threatened over the forced resignations last night of two faculty members and the abolition of the office of a third.

The state board of agriculture accepted the resignations of Joseph F. Cox, dean of agriculture, and James B. Hasselman, director of publications, and abolished the office of college historian held by Dr. Frank S. Kedzie, 75-year-old president emeritus.

After issuing a statement deploring rumors and charges which he said had been directed against his administration for more than a year, Dr. Robert S. Shaw, president of the college, said acting heads of the agricultural and publications departments probably will be appointed next week. Dr. Shaw said that "corrective action," had been imperative in view of the many rumors against the administration.

Foster Scores Action

As publishers of weekly newspapers throughout the state threatened retaliation for the dismissal of Hasselman over their protest, the agricultural board drew fire from another source.

State Senator Joseph C. Foster, of Lansing, chairman of the senate Michigan State college committee, demanded rescinding of the board's action and reinstatement of the three faculty members in a letter to Herman H. Halladay, secretary of the board. He said the board's action "appears to me to be purely political and I challenge that it was enacted with serious judgment. I resent seeing any state institution of learning made a political football."

The names of Dr. Victor Gardner, director of the agricultural experiment station and head of the horticultural division, and Howard C. Rather, head of the farm crops department, were prominently mentioned as possible successors to Dean Cox. When Dr. Shaw was elevated to the presidency four years ago, Dr. Gardner was a candidate along with Cox for his vacated post as dean of agriculture and director of the experiment station. The board made Cox the dean and appointed Dr. Gardner the director. Rather is one of the most popular members of the agricultural staff and is an expert in farm crop problems.

Fred L. Hinshaw, former Detroit newspaperman and alumnus of the college, was suggested in some quarters as Hasselman's successor.

Dr. Shaw's statement declared that "continued repetitions of unfounded rumors, criticisms and charges against both members of the board and the faculty have resulted in seriously affecting the morale of the staff, destroying harmonious relationships, and engendering a spirit of distrust and unrest inimical to the best interests of the college."

Weekly newspaper publishers put up a four hour battle Friday for Hasselman. They listened to the report of Joseph A. Baldwin, special assistant attorney general who investigated the college in behalf of the agricultural board, which hinted at disciplinary charges.

IT REALLY HAPPENS

St. Louis, Mo.—Not only in books does the supposedly poor and aged widow die and leave a hidden fortune, but also in actual life. Mrs. Elizabeth Weil, an 82-year-old widow, was found dead recently. Her belongings were searched by police and gold and bills amounting to $2,615 were found.

BRAMPTON ROAD JOB ADVERTISED

Bids Asked for Grading And Graveling on New Trunk Line

During the coming week, bids are to be asked for the improvement of 4.748 miles of highway between Rapid River and Brampton, on trunk line M-168, in Masonville and Brampton townships.

Sealed proposals for the work will be received up to 10 a. m. Dec. 14. The project will consist of grading, shaping, drainage structures, and surfacing to a width of 20 feet with one-course gravel. Specifications call for the work to be completed by Aug. 1, 1933.

Special regulations regarding the employment of local labor will be carried out on the contracts. The state also fixes the minimum wage at 30 cents an hour for unskilled labor and 40 cents an hour for skilled workmen.

The road is an important connecting route between US-2 and M-35.

Upper Peninsula Club Members Go To Chicago Show

Eleven upper peninsula boys and girls, who have made outstanding records in 4-H club work this year, have left for Chicago to participate in the National Club Congress, Nov. 26 to Dec. 2.

Three of the contingent are state fair winners, five were awarded trips by the Chicago & North Western railroad and three are making the trip as guests of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad.

List of Trip Winners

The state fair winners are June Hungerford of Sault Ste. Marie, clothing judging; Betty McPherson, of Rapid River, clothing demonstration, and Antoinette Briggs, of Pentoga, poultry judging.

Those awarded trips by the two railroads for outstanding work in county 4-H club work are as follows: Vera White, Rapid River; Tyyne Salo, Ironwood; Ever Johnson, Iron River; Clara Olsen, Sands; Catherine Potter, Stephenson; Melvin Aspholm, Iron River; Emil Porkka, Liminga, Houghton county, and Benedict Voss, White Pine, Ontonagon county. Miss White was also a member of the demonstration team at the state fair.

The group was accompanied by a leader, E. A. Wenner, Iron county club agent, and Miss Olga Bird.

Will See Exposition

Besides participating in the various judging contests at the club congress, the upper peninsula winners will have an opportunity of witnessing the International Livestock Exposition, which this year promises to exceed its own past records in size and significance as the continent's foremost congress of American agriculture. The exposition opened its doors at the Chicago stock yards Saturday and will close Dec. 2.

For the last 32 years, this famous exposition held since its inception the week following Thanksgiving holiday, has marked the year's progress in American livestock farming and each year has set a new pace and higher goals for livestock men.

Alien Racketeer Might Be Deported

Detroit, Nov. 26 (AP)—Dellacecca Lavenio, described by federal officials as an alien racketeer, is held under a $25,000 immigration bond pending deportation proceedings. Officials said they would seek to deport him to Italy on grounds that he committed a crime within five years of entry to the United States. They charged him with violating the prohibition law.

FARE SWIMMERS

Long distance swimmers are these fair meremaids, who if they desired, might start splashing in New York and continue right on to Miami. It sounds pretty complicated but the five swimmers are enjoying the miniature tank on the recreation car which has become part of the equipment of the New York-to-Miami railroad service. Of course the tank is too small for a swim, but the splashing possibilities are great. Trying out the tank, left to right, are Lisa Lindstrom, Dorothea Dickinson, Jessie Conway, Susan Rogertson adn Joan McSheeby.

Court Requested To Permit Recount

Lansing, Nov. 26 (AP)—The supreme court was asked Saturday by the state board of canvassers to dismiss the petition of Lawrence O'Neill, Paris, Mich., Democrat, for a writ of mandamus to prevent the recount of the vote for state representative in the Mecosta-Lake district. The official canvass of the vote showed O'Neill defeated the Republican incumbent, Rep. Walter F. Jackson, of Big Rapids, by one vote.

A MUTUAL FRIGHT

Vancouver, B. C.—Dogs had been raiding Mrs. Murray Harris' outdoor larder, and she was determined to put a stop to it. Hearing a dog sniffing around outside her kitchen door recently she selected a large chunk of stove wood and darted to the door. Opening the dor she almost fell into the outstretched arms of a huge black bear. With a scream she slammed the door and made a dash for her bedroom, but Bruin was making an equally excited dash in the opposite direction.

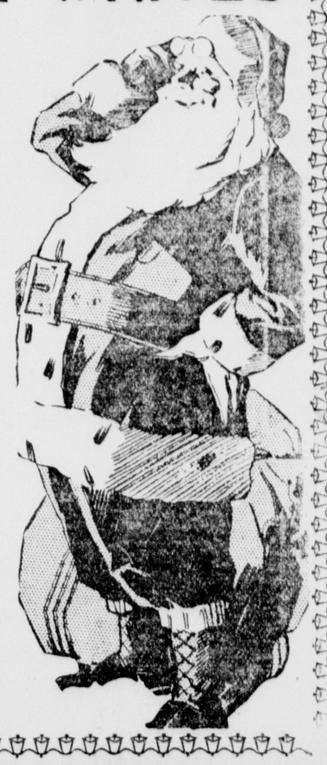
SANTA WRITES

To Our Boss . . .



Nome, Alaska

Dear Mr. Gessner

I am just finishing up my work getting the millions of toys and other gifts ready for my friends and am making plans for my annual trip to Escanaba.

I want you to get everything ready for me as I intend holding my party for the good boys and girls at the Coliseum as I have in the past. Then I want you to build a little room for me at The Fair Store where I can meet all my young friends in person.

I don't know just when I'll be leaving but I'll send you a radiogram when I start. One of my Reindeer is sick and so I may come by airplane and train.

Your old friend,

Santa.
